WOMAN IS PUZZLE IN SHOOTING

NEW YORK, July 2.—Coroner Norton of Nassau County today postponed the inquest over the body of Mrs. Louise Bailey, who was murdered in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Freeport, until an autopsy could be held.

"The District Attorney will be represented at the autopsy," said the coroner. "The necessity for performing a thorough autopsy has arisen, but I cannot tell at this time why it was ordered."

The coroner's action, coming close on the heels of the discovery that

APPEAL TO BROCKTON FOR FIRE AID

Governor Walsh today took charge personally as general in command of the Salem fire relief tangle in an effort to secure at once food, clothing and permanent shelter for the 20,000 refugee victims of the fire. Nearly $300,000 has been contributed all over the State, but a million is needed. Not $100,000 has arrived in Salem to be spent for actual relief and the situation there is deplorable.

The Governor sent a special message to the Legislature today asking for quick legislation to cut red tape and get out of State storehouses and down to the relief of Salem a great quantity of clothing, mattresses and blankets.

WORKERS HELPLESS.

The Governor learned today that the workers in Salem are practically helpless, with nothing to work with and no money and supplies on hand.

Governor Walsh will make a nation-wide appeal for funds.

Reports from the general relief committee today showed that the aftermath of the Salem horror is a far greater problem than was at first anticipated, and that the funds in sight are less than a half or even a quarter of what will be needed before conditions are brought back to normal.

It was voted at the meeting to make appeals as a beginning to the Governors of all the States and Mayors of the larger cities and through national organizations, such as the Red Cross.

Further suggestion was that individual members of the relief committee make a personal appeal for funds to their acquaintances of wealth.

The Governor, it is expected, will prepare his appeal to the country some time today.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

The Governor in his message to the Legislature today says:

To The Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

In consultation with the Fraser Commission of the Commonwealth this morning, I learned that there is in the storehouses of the Massachusetts Reformatory and the Charlestown State Prison approximately the following property:

1,000 blankets.
15,000 yards of men's suitings.
5,000 yards of women's dress goods.
10,000 pairs f women's, men's and children' shoes
2,000 suits of men's clothes
250 mattresses and material to make 1,000 more.

It is the opinion of the Prison Commissioners that this property could be used to relieve the suffering and wants of the people who have been made destitute by the conflagration at Salem, and I request the passage of such legislation as will give them the power to use such of this property as they deem prudent for the purpose of furnishing relief in Salem.

(Signed) DAVID I. WALSH.

Fred S. Tolman, one of the largest job printers in the country, with offices in Boston and plant in Brockton, vice-president of Brockton Fair, bank director and worth upward o fa million, was found strangled to death under two ladders in the rear of Warren Howard's barn on West Elm street, Brockton, not far from his own home, at 8 o'clock today.

Investigation into the mystery was begun. An autopsy will probably be held by Medical Examiner A. E. Paine.

Mr. Tolman left the Merchants & Manufacturers' Club in Brockton at 5 o'clock last night. He remarked to one of his club mates that he had a lot on his mind, referring to pressure of business.

When he had not arrived at his home at No. 40 Arlington street by midnight, his sons, Harold and Daniel, with President Fred R. Howard of the Home National Bank, an intimate friend, began search. They failed to find Mr. Tolman, although they passed and re-passed several times the Warren Howard premises where Mr. Tolman was pinned under the ladders.

Today the body was found by Warren Howard. Mr. Tolman's face was blue and distorted. One hand clutched some dirt, clawed up in a dying struggle. The boots had kicked holes in the ground.

Resting across Mr. Tolman's head and neck were two fifteen-foot ladders. Mr. Howard had left these ladders standing against the back of the barn yesterday afternoon. The police believe that Mr. Tolman undertook a short cut through the Howard premises, ran into one of the ladders in the dark and knocked it down on him. The police think that Mr. Howard was felled and probably stunned, that one ladder's fall brought down the other, and that the combined weight of the two on the unconscious man's neck was enough to strangle him. Mr. Tolman was fifty-eight years old and in good health.

Fred S. Tolman came to Brockton from Stoughton when a boy and began printing business cards. From this he built up a business known all over the Eastern part of the country. he was a director in the Home National Bank and belonged to the Commercial, Merchants and Manufacturers and Thorny Lea Golf Clubs of Brockton, the Brockton Fair Association and several Masonic bodies.

Ayer Loses in Sculls; Union Boat Club and Harvard Crews Win

HENLEY, England, July 2.—American oars swept the Thames today, both the Harvard and Union Boat Club crews winning their trials in the Henley Challenge Cup series, and chances of the world's greatest water trophy going across the ocean, heretofore somewhat discounted, are now admitted very good by the English experts themselves.

Both crews exhibited splendid oarsmanship, and the impressive manner in which they swept across the finish line, leading two of the greatest English eights, took away the breath of the hundreds of thousands of spectators that lined the banks of England's historic stream.

Though they saw their own favorites defeated, the great work of the invading athletes sent the crowd wild, even as would have a home crew win.

Another English crew was eliminated from the Grand Challenge cup contest when the German oarsmen defeated the crew of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Germans won by three-quarters of a length.

HARVARD BEATS CHAMPS.

The Harvard eight won by a length from the crack Leander crew, the present holder of the Challenge Cup, while the Union oarsmen entirely outclassed the London Rowing Club's representatives.

In the Diamond Sculls, however, the last Yankee left fell by the wayside, Dr. Ayer of Boston being forced

GIVEN A YEAR IN JAIL FOR PICTURES IN NUDE

WORCESTER, July 2.—Warren E. Beard, a former Worcester tailor who maintained a bungalow on the shores of Lake Quinsigamond, was today found guilty of enticing young men and women to his bungalow, and of photographing them in the nude. He was sentenced to one year imprisonment in the House of Correction.

The names of the nude models who posed for Beard, and who are believed to be well-known married women and girls of Worcester and of Lake Shire Summer colony, were carefully withheld by Judge Utley at the request of the District Attorney, James A. Stiles, who is himself investigating. Beard appealed and was held in $1,000, which was furnished by friends.

The only witnesses in the low court case were the Watch and Ward agents and the State police who made the arrest. Beard himself did not testify, although he pleaded not guilty.

But three different women, one of them married, figured in the plates and pictures which had been seized and submitted as evidence. The District Attorney, however, has the names of many more women, all of whom will testify before the Grand Jury. There were 125 plates seized. Some were of single figures, others were groups.

Frank Fitzgibbons, Jefferson Parker and Charles Johnson, Watch and Ward agents, testified that three months ago they hired a cottage alongside of Beard's bungalow, which they watched carefully at like times. They described visitors who called on Beard, both men and women, as well as young boys and girls.

The "White City," a resort on the shores of the lake, is but a short distance from the bungalow, and many parties came from there. The Watch and Ward men not only described orgies which they had witnessed by peeking in the windows, but told of posing for Beard themselves, in order to get a look at the collection Beard had told them of.

State Police Officers Robert E. Molt and Jeremiah O'Neil, who made the arrest at the request of the Watch and Ward agents, submitted the seized plates. Much of the evidence was unprintable.

Morgan Calls on Wilson to Urge a "Go Easy" Policy

WASHINGTON, July 2.—J. Pierpont Morgan conferred with President Wilson today upon various aspects of the business and financial problems now before the country.

The interview was the first of a series which President Wilson plans to hold with prominent business men. Henry Ford of Detroit, the automobile manufacturer, will call at the White House next week.

Mr. Morgan's visit was at his own solicitation and no formal statement was made at the White House as to the purpose of the call. It is believed that Mr. Morgan presented the Wall street view of the prevailing business depression, and probably attempted to persuade the President to "go easy" while business is passing through a period of readjustment caused by the tariff and currency laws.

It was stated at the White House that Mr. Morgan's call had nothing to do with the New Haven situation.

President Wilson is now making a strong effort to get in touch with the business interests of the country.

Threaten Tener with Baseball Boycott

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 2.—The Westinghouse strikers today sent Governor Tener an ultimatum that unless he withdraws the State constabulary from the strike zone they will inaugurate a boycott movement against the National League, of which Tener is president. The strikers today were planning to station pickets before the Westinghouse and Pittsburgh baseball parks here. Both are owned by the company.

HUNT FOR GIRL AND CHAUFFEUR IN FLIGHT

Fern Hallian, the beautiful eighteen-year-old daughter of J .H. Hallian of Arlington and Hull, who eloped last night with her father's chauffeur, Louis Eisman, has vanished into thin air so far as the police investigation has gone.

The two hired an automobile in Hull last night, drove to the North Station, there took a train, and—no one knows where they are today.

Mr. Hallian said today:

I intend to prosecute the man to the limit. I will never rest till he is punished—for luring a little girl like that away from home. I will never forgive him. I will pursue him all his life.

If I catch them before they are married, I'll thank God for it. But whether or not I prevent the marriage, he shall be punished. I will never let them live together.

"HE HAS STOLEN MY CHILD."

"We always treated him well. And now he has stolen away this child—this little girl—hardly more than a school girl.

There was never anything to so much as hint at this. Eisman was just like the rest of the help. He was polite, respectful, and did his work.

Fern never seemed to pay any

CARRANZA AND VILLA NEAR WAR

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 2.—That the forces of General Carranza and General Villa are on the verge of actual hostilities was the declaration made here today by friends and supporters of Villa.

They declared that Carranza's troops were fortifying Monterey and Saltillo in anticipation of a complete break with Villa and the fear that he would send his army to take the two cities.

According to men in close touch with the unfailing efforts to effect a reconciliation between the two men have resulted in separating them still further. Present indications are that the final campaign against Mexico City will be postponed for several weeks.

Villa will not attempt to move southward while the Carranzistas are threatening him in the rear, and Carranza will refuse to let his men help Villa until the latter gives assurances that he will support the claims of the "First Chief" that he is entitled to the presidency of Mexico.

REBELS SET TRAP TO PREVENT ESCAPE OF THE DICTATOR

By JOHN K. WINKLER.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

VERA CRUZ, July 2.—General Carranza has told Heriberto Jara to use every means to prevent the escape of Huerta from Mexico.

General Jara has confirmed the Tampico report that the rebels have sent a body of picked men disguised men to Mexico City for the purpose not only of preventing the escape but of preventing the assassination of Huerta.

These men, who are young officers, are eager to win fame.

General Jara says the rebels wish above all to prevent the escape or flight of the dictator. He said:

"We wish to try Huerta legally. If he escapes we will demand his return as embezzler, defaulter and murderer. We believe the American people will back our demand that Huerta be not classed as a political offender. We are prepared to prove that Huerta has stolen 20,000,000 pesos, some of which is on deposit in New York banks. Zuburan is tracing the accounts there."

Staff officer Jesus Carranza, at Tampico, declares a dozen offers to assassinate Huerta have been made to his brother, Venustiano, but all were refused with the remark:

"Weare determined that Victoriano Huerta shall go to the gallows, but he must go legally."

URGE MEDIATORS TO CONTINUE, FEARING END MEANS BLOODSHED

By WILLIAM J. MADDOX.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Efforts on the part of the American administration to induce the mediators to remain at Niagara Falls and keep up a semblance of international discourse at least, are being taken today.

It is feared by officials that should the news reach the people of Mexico that mediation is at an end they would place the interpretation upon the statement that any tacit armistice that has existed since it at once. Danger to Americans in Mexico would ensue it is feared. With this possibility in mind the mediators have been urged to keep mediation going if only for mere appearances.

In diplomatic circles here today it is rumored that the Mexican delegates are very much incensed at the turn mediation affairs have taken in the last few days. It is said that they feel that they have been neglected by the mediators and that the burden of arbitration has been thrown entirely upon them. Little credence is given to the rumors that Huerta is planning to make a "get-away."

MUST ACCEPT U. S. TERMS, IS ULTIMATUM SENT TO CARRANZA

WASHINGTON, July 2.—That he must accept peace on the terms of the United States or take his chances for American intervention was the word sent to General Carranza today.

After nearly trying all day yesterday to get into touch with the first chief of the Mexican revolution the Juarez force sent a message through to him. It was pointed out that the United administration is determined to foster settlement of the Mexican problem by Mexicans themselves. Carranza was urged to agree to unofficial parleys with the Huertists delegates now at Niagara, and asked to point out his differences with Villa immediately. The ministers of the latter outlined themselves as hopeful a favorable answer will be returned.

GRACE LA RUE, who, Byron Chandler, her husband, says earns $12,500 yearly.

CHANDLER SAYS HIS WIFE GETS $12,500 A YEAR

NEW YORK, July 2.—Attorney for G. Byron Chandler, known on upper Broadway as the "Million Dollar Kid," claimed Mrs. Chandler has an income of $12,500 a year, when Chandler brought his move to the Supreme Court today that the order of arrest obtained against him by his wife, who on the stage is Grace La Rue, be vacated.

Chandler was arrested several weeks ago on a separation suit brought by Chandler, and after a night in custody of deputy sheriffs at a hotel, his mother arranged to furnish a bond for him.

Mrs. Chandler asked $2,000 a year alimony, and according to her attorneys, who opposed the motion of Chandler, the latter is receiving an income of $5,000 a year from his mother. He also receives an income from a trust fund created by his father.

Chandler objects to being held liable for the payment for the new income his wife has laid made. Justice Weeks reserved decision.

$1,000 Bill in Change Stuns Policeman

NEW YORK, July 2.—Policeman George F. Armstrong, Simpson street station, the Bronx, cashed his pay check yesterday at the saloon of McQuade & Flanigan. Counting his money in the station later, he saw a familiar bill.

"What's this?" he cried.

"That's a thousand-dollar bill," answered Lieutenant Tierney. "You had better take it back."

"Sure, I will, but I wouldn't go through the streets alone with that." Sergeant O'Grady was assigned to walk back with him. From the grateful McQuade each got a cigar.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 2.—The English built steam yacht Alberta, Captain Curtis, owned by Commodore Frederick Bourne, arrived today after a fourteen-day trip from Gibraltar touching at the Azores.

KEEP BLOCKADE ON BOYLSTON ST. 2 MONTHS MORE

Boylston street merchants learned today that the Nawn Contracting Company would continue its occupation of Copley Square and the public way along Boylston street to the Public Gardens for at least two months longer, despite the indignant protests of hundreds of business men.

The company, which is building the Boylston street subway, had given the Park and Recreation Department to understand it would terminate its monopoly of Copley Square and the streets in that vicinity by July 1. Inquiry today revealed the fact that only three small shacks had been removed.

NINE STORES VACANT.

Merchants have protested against the Nawn Company occupying Copley Square with its buildings, concrete mixers, crushed stone, lumber and other supplies, declaring it was ruining their business. Nine vacant stores in the vicinity attest to the truth of their statement. But conditions still remain practically unchanged. Boylston street, from Charles street, extending a hundred feet toward Tremont street, is almost impassable.

"How about the promise to vacate Copley Square by July 1?" was asked Harry P. Nawn today.

"We are doing the best we can," he replied. "It isn't possible for me to get out now before August 1. It may be later than that."

"How about Boylston street? When will your work on the subway be sufficiently advanced to close in that street?

"It is impossible to tell now."

NEW LIMIT SEPT. 15.

"I don't think it is possible for us to clean up Boylston street before August 1 and it may be September 15 before we are through," Nawn added. "You see we have to cut through tremendous amount of concrete in making a new entrance into the Old Tremont street subway. This takes time.

"I am sorry for the merchants if they are losing trade, but I can't help it. We are doing the best we can and people should be satisfied. We have taken down a few small buildings in Copley Square, but we can't vacate before the first of September, probably later.

A report that somebody had entered the home of Leander A. Penney, No. 192 Pearl street, Somerville, brought the auto patrol with officers Hawes and Wilson. There they found James Sperry, whom they arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

Plan More Posters to Extend 'Safety First' Campaign

Posters, addressed respectively to drivers, pedestrians, passengers, "Mr. Everyman," parents and others, are to appear at intervals during July, in a continuation of the "Safety First" campaign of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Elevated.

Besides these, 50,000 oval-shaped stickers appear today in trolley cars, warning "Avoid Accidents," "Safety First" and "Watch Your Step." The Boston Elevated Carmen's Union is co-operating with the company and will aid in the propaganda.

Tango Helps to Prevent Divorce, Says Suffragist

NEW YOR... July 2.—"That shows how much those old fogy doctors know about practical matrimony. he idea of saying that the tango causes divorce when everybody knows that what the new dances do is to make husbands more interesting."

This idea was expressed by Mrs. Frederick Gillette, the best dancer in suffrage circles.

"Dancing has done more to prevent divorce than anything that has been invented in the twentieth century. I know of any number of couples who are having a second honeymoon all because of the dance craze," she says.

Walsh Vetoes East Boston Gas Bill

Governor Walsh vetoed today Representative Niland's bill to fix the price of gas in East Boston at eighty cents a thousand feet, instead of the present price of eighty-five cents. The Gas and Electric Light Commission is preparing a report for the Governor on the question and because of the policy inaugurated with the inception of the commission in 1885 he decided to prevent legislative interference with the policy and powers of the board.

HUNT OWNER OF NEW KEY FOUND IN BALLOU CASE

STAMFORD, Ct., July 2.—The owner of a key which opens the front door of the Rippowam building and all the doors of the apartment of Mrs. Helen Angle, who is held in the investigation of the death of Waldo H. Ballou, must account for its presence in Mrs. Angle's apartment. His identity is known to Chief of Police Brennan, who has not succeeded in finding him.

The discovery is deemed important, for it tends to fit the State's theory of the presence of a third party, and it narrows the investigation. Only these lines to the holders of the keys. A new arrest today is expected.

That there are other keys which open the Rippowam lodge room door, the street door and Mrs. Angle's door was apparent when Leonard Blondel, Mrs. Angle's father, said his own key to the police would open the front door of his daughter's apartment.

The police insist that every key which opens the front door of the Rippowam building will also open the front door of Mrs. Angle's apartment. But the particular key in the chief's possession also opens the rear door of her apartment, he said.

Chief Brennan has the maker's record for it and other keys of the same type. There are said to be five such keys, and three of them have been accounted for.

The State claims that it has sufficient evidence to warrant Coroner Phelan holding Mrs. Angle at the conclusion of his inquest tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Angle has received a number of offers to go on the vaudeville stage. Her father says it was these offers she referred to when newspaper men overheard her say, "Destroy them at once."

Chief Brennan said positively that the key he has in his possession is not Mrs. Angle's key.

The bonds under the mortgage mature in 1934, the proceeds to be used by the company in connection with its business of transportation of passengers and freight. While the name given in the agreement is the New England Steamboat Company, the property described in the schedule as filed is that of the New England Steamship Company, a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

CALL GILLOOLY POOR VICTIM OF DE LUXE AGENTS

In order to satisfy a longing for rare volumes of literature, Frederick L. Gillooly fell a victim to de luxe book sharpers and was tempted to take money from the Overseers of the Poor department. This is the explanation which Gillooly gave attorney John P. Leahy, when the latter visited him at his bedside.

Gillooly is prostrated. Since the day he was called before the Finance Commission, he has been confined to his home. He has been growing steadily worse and for the past week has been ill. While at the Quincy home, No. 14 Adelaide street, West Roxbury, Attorney Leahy examined the volumes which had been purchased. Today he said:

"I don't think much can be realized on them. However, restitution will be made. Unknown to him, his friends, who have always known him to be a man of clean habits with many fine qualities, resolved to help him in his difficulty.

"If it becomes necessary to arrest him, two men are prepared to act as his bondsmen. He was a man with a fondness for literature and art. He fell an easy victim to the de luxe agents. While his means were sufficient to support his family, he did not earn enough to buy the rare and costly volumes which enticed him. This led him to be tempted and it proved too strong a temptation. It is nothing which cannot be remedied."

At the meeting of the Board of Overseers of the Poor, in the Charities Building yesterday, Gillooly was summarily discharged. The reason given was his confession of guilt to the Finance Commission in having embezzled $5,000 of the department's funds.

Curley in a statement says that, if Gillooly desires to escape arrest and criminal prosecution, he must make full restitution. If Gillooly could arrange with the Overseers to return the money, Mayor Curley would not advise further action. If not, he would submit the Finance Commission's report to the District Attorney.

Harris Lost $340,000 in Follies Bergere

NEW YORK, July 2.—The appraisal of the estate of Henry B. Harris, the theatrical manager, who went down with the Titanic, filed in the Surrogate's Court, shows the estate assets to be $265,443 and the liabilities $400,000. The appraisal shows that Mr. Harris, in the maintenance of the Follies Bergere, lost between $340,000 and $360,000.

Friday Hour Sales

Our customers will gain thousands of dollars on account of the store being closed all day Saturday, July 4th. We lose only half a day, as the store would be closed anyway after 1 o'clock Saturday. We do not expect to do two days' business in one, but we DO expect to do thousands of dollars more than we do on any ordinary Friday in July. Great are the concessions we have made to achieve this result.

This is our first Independence Day Announcement in our new store and we herewith and again assert our independence in these words:
"W. & A. Bacon Co., an independent institution, independent of any outside capital, independent of any outside influence. A store owned and operated by Boston men and able to take care of itself."

40% Increase in June
Over the business done in this building last year.

To our best knowledge and belief
Bacons' June Business
was the second largest department store business in Boston in June and exceeded by many thousands of dollars the business done in THIS building last December.

AMERICAN TO AWARD $250! GO TO REVERE FLIGHT ON JULY 4!

A lot of people started to write a letter yesterday or today, and finished it by setting down at the head of the sheet something like this:

Boston, Mass.,
June ——

And when they've written "June" they've laid down and scratched their heads, and exclaimed:

"Why, no, June's gone. This is July."

Then they wrote "July," and that set them thinking, so that a mind-reader would have heard a lot of thoughts like this:

"July! What does that remind me of? H-e-m! H-e-m! Oh, golly, sure enough. That reminds me that Saturday is July 4, and I mustn't forget to be down at Revere Beach between four and seven that afternoon."

There are literally thousands of people who are thinking just that today—Two more days, and more days. For they've seen in the AMERICAN that the Fourth of July means a chance to make money at Revere Beach. Also, it means a chance to see something more wonderful than any other invention of man.

EVERYBODY INVITED.

In case you haven't been reading the AMERICAN, read now, that the AMERICAN invites all you good folks of Boston, and you friends from Cambridge, and Brookline, and Squantum, and Newton, and Somerville, and Watertham, and all the other towns and cities round about, to come to Revere Saturday afternoon and see a remarkable spectacle.

To some of our friends who come, the AMERICAN has arranged to give an Opportunity. The AMERICAN is planning to award $250 to the winners of a contest of a new and unique nature.

You cannot enter this contest unless you go to Revere. Neither can you see the remarkable spectacle—the spectacle of a self-balancing, "fool-proof" aeroplane in flight.

This is the new Burgess-Dunne plane, built right down at Marblehead, a huge, arrow-shaped machine, the wings sliding backward like a bird's. The wings are so shaped that the big plane balances itself. You may climb 500 feet in the air, set its levers at "straight ahead," take your hands behind your head and take a nap. That is, you may do this if you wish, and the chances are you will come out all right.

Clifford Webster, the young Haverhill man who flies this machine, has it "going its own gait" more than once in this fashion. He did it when representatives of the Aero Club of America came to Marblehead especially to see if the new plane was all it was said to be.

Webster was perfectly willing to oblige. He took out the big biplane, drove it off across the water, turned it facing the boathouse where the committee was watching, then locked his hands behind his head and let it drive straight at them. Then the plane, swooping over the water, got up speed, lifted off the water, swooped upward in a beautiful curve over their heads and shot away behind them—Webster's hands still behind his head.

WILL SCATTER $250.

He did other "stunts." Took the plane high into the air, pointed its nose downward—and took his hands from the levers. It shot down to water level without a quiver—starting down like an eagle after an osprey's dropped fish. Again he took the plane into the air, pointed its nose upward, and took his hands away. The plane forged upward, slowly, literally step by step. It showed no tendency to tip backward as an ordinary plane would have done.

This is the plane, and this is the aviator you will see at Revere Saturday. That's just 7day after tomorrow—now. He will come over from Marblehead by air, make three flights, spend two hours in the air or on the water just off the beach, and at last climb into the sky again and wing back to Marblehead.

But—and here perhaps is the most appealing part of Webster's flight to some of you—he will drop $250 into the crowd on the beach.

Not $250 in cash, to be sure. That would do away with the excitement of the thing. But Webster will drop thousands of little cards. They will flutter down from the plane into your very hands. And you who are lucky enough to find one of the cards will read upon it:

"This card may be worth $20 in cash to you."

The cards, in other words, are your tickets to the contest—and the contest the AMERICAN has planned; a contest that appeals to your love of fun, to your ability to think, and to many other qualities. You cannot win a cash award without entering the contest; you cannot enter the contest without a card; you cannot get a card without being there at Revere when Webster flies; and you cannot see Webster fly without going to Revere.

So go to Revere, see Webster, get a card, enter the contest—and play the best man win.

The contest? What kind of a contest is it? Oh, that remains for you to discover. That is part of the mystery.

Mrs. McCormick Sails for London

Mrs. Stanley McCormick, the well-known Boston suffragist, sailed from New York aboard the Cunard liner Aquitania for London.

She was selected to represent the American suffragists at the Suffrage convention abroad, when Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who was at first chosen, was unable to go.

Hold Man Trapped in Roof-Top Chase

Harry Sayer, twenty-nine, who gave his address as No. 145 West Newton street, Boston, was arraigned in the Chelsea police court charged with assault with intent to rob and carrying a loaded revolver. Sayer was caught on a roof at No. 18 Cherry street by Patrolman Glennon, who was investigating an attempted holdup of a pawnshop.

MRS. STANLEY McCORMICK, the Boston woman who will represent the American suffragists at the suffrage convention abroad.

DID NOT MEAN TO KILL, SAYS ROBINSON

"Diamond Chip" Robinson, alleged slayer of Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton, declares he is going to do his best at the coming trial to prove that he "did not intend to kill" in the scuffle which preceded his arrest in a Boylston street restaurant. It became known today.

Robinson is closely guarded by three officers in cell No. 12 in the Charles street jail. His cell is just off the first door from the rotunda on the right. He is still suffering from pains in the neck and arm, where he was shot.

Commenting on his case to a person who called at the jail to see him, Robinson spoke his mind freely. Sheriff Quinn, it is claimed, was present during the interview.

"I'm going to do my best to show that I did not intend to kill Police Inspector Norton," Robinson is quoted as saying.

"Everything happened so quickly that I am at a loss to explain what occurred and how I figured in it.

"My neck and arm are still bothering me. The jail officials are feeding me on boiled rice. That is about the only kind of food that can get into my system.

"The jail officials need have no fear of me. I will not do anything to alarm them.

"Sheriff Quinn and his attendants have my word that I will be careful not to bother them."

"I was a bad boy the day of the shooting in the restaurant. Prior to that I always behaved well.

"I've given my word that I intend to behave myself. I never broke my word, and outside of this affair, they've nothing again' me."

Friends of Robinson declare that he was given a "raw deal" by a number of young women whom he befriended during the time he frequented romes Robinson. It is claimed, will give some startling information concerning some of these women.

Bank Directors Not Liable for Theft

HARTFORD, Ct., July 2.—Judge Bennett of the Superior Court, in a memorandum filed here, holds that directors of the Windsor Locks Banking Bank are not liable for the defalcation of nearly $100,000 which occurred during the many years Alfred Converse, the treasurer, held office.

REMARKABLE LIFE ROMANCE OF 'CHIP' ROBINSON, GUNMAN

CHAPTER IV.

"Company, villainous company, hath been the spoil of me."—(King Henry IV.)

No children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Robinson. If little ones had come into their home, the course of Robinson's life might have been shaped differently, as strong a prop, sometimes, is the feeling that helpless children are dependent upon a man for support.

As matters stand Dora Hard Robinson is decidedly thankful that she has no child to bear the burden of the father's record, now that she is aware of his real nature.

Mrs. Robinson, in the opinion of Washington Courthouse, was completely deceived for several years as to her husband's life and associations. She remained at their home in Cincinnati while he was away on the road. She was never robust, although country born and bred. The long absences of her husband made her lonesome, which was injurious to her. She became delicate and prone to illness.

Through these years she spent in Cincinnati, alone much of the time, Mrs. Robinson's love for her husband remained pure and sweet. She was devoted to the man and, as subsequent events showed, was ready to stand by him, no matter what shadows fell upon his life and reputation.

Meanwhile Robinson was "following the big top," as circus men say. The "big top" is the main tent and the regular employes and the hangers-on speak of their life in that way.

Today the circuses, at least the few big ones, have eliminated the pickpocket, the "three card monte man" and similar gentry as much as possible. Co-operating with municipal and railroad police, the managements of the principal shows not only give no protection to the grafters, but run them out of the show at every opportunity. They cannot, however, prevent these undesirables from taking the same routes as the circus and from mingling with the enormous crowds which are drawn daily to the grounds.

FEARED GUNMAN.

The qualities of strength and ready action which had made Lawrence Robinson a leader among boys were quickly adapted by him to the life he was leading with the circuses.

He was employed at times as a ticket taker and also as a candy "butcher" or seller. But, according to the opinion of the craft for two reasons. In the first place, it placed a record on him which could be used against him if he ever should be arrested. In the next place it put the fraternity "in bad" without need, as the pickpockets figured. They understood why Robinson did not wish to get arrested but they said he did not have to give the police chief such a terrific pounding. That thought showed lack of judgment.

As the crooks are radically against all shooting, so, in a smaller degree, the indulgence in fisticuffs is deplored, especially fisticuffs upon the police.

It may be that the strange unnatural influence which has already been mentioned in this narrative compelled Robinson to fistic violence. Washington Courthouse gossip has it that he was fated to be a "gunman," on account of his mother's armed pursuit of his father. The question is raised whether the mother's state of mind did not tend to make Robinson a man of desperate resistance along any line, as well as specifically inclined to firearms.

One more angle of that affair in Reading, Cal., points to the nature of Robinson, as the police see it. He was operating with a gang of men who were known or destined to become known most unfavorably to the police.

In the group were "Red" Nichols, Dan Shirley of Toledo and Pat Hill of New York. Shirley is the only one of this quartet now out of jail. This shows the thoroughly criminal associations which Robinson had, although he was not to become so widely known until recently.

The loving young wife, keeping her quiet home in Cincinnati, was totally unaware of these associates of her husband. She would have been properly appalled if she had known that the man whose name she bore was one of such a gang.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

GIRL WHO ONCE JILTED BACON SOON TO MARRY

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Cecilia May, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Henry May of Washington to Wilhelm Vom Rath, attache of the German embassy, caused a flutter in Boston society circles today when it was recalled the handsome bride-to-be once jilted Robert L. Bacon, Jr., son of former United States Ambassador to France and Mrs. Bacon.

Talk of the coming wedding has revived discussion of the clash between the Bacon and May families over religious differences and the subsequent shattering of a beautiful romance three years ago. Miss May is abroad with her mother selecting her trousseau. Bacon is now the husband of Virginia Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Murray, whom he married in April, 1912.

Vom Rath, Miss May's fiance, went to Germany in May to secure the consent of the Kaiser to his marriage to the Washington society belle, in accordance with the recent law regarding such matters affecting German diplomatic circles. The German Emperor is said to have expressed his pleasure at the match and a formal announcement of the engagement is expected within the next few days.

BREAKS ENGAGEMENT.

Several months previous to her engagement to Robert L. Bacon, Jr., it was rumored Miss May was to wed Henri Martin, charge d'affaires of the Swiss embassy, but their engagement was never announced.

Colonel and Mrs. Henry May broke the engagement of Miss May to Robert L. Bacon, Jr., because Mr. Bacon declined to make the promises required by the Roman Catholic faith in mixed marriages. Mr. Bacon being a Protestant.

The binding promise exacted by the Roman Catholic Church in all mixed marriages which it sanctions is that all children resulting from the union shall be reared in the Roman Catholic faith.

Society was pained and grieved over this tragic denouement to a romance which was coincident to the romance of Count Pourtales and Countess Von Hernstorff, daughter of the German ambassador, which culminated in a marriage in which Miss May was one of the happy bridesmaids. The greater amazement was expressed by society over the fact that matters had been allowed to progress so far without the question of religion having been adjusted.

SPECIAL DISPENSATION.

An early wedding has been arranged for. Miss May and her family are devout Catholics, and desiring to have the ceremony performed during a visit of Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon to this country, a special dispensation was obtained from Cardinal Gibbons to have the wedding celebrated during the London season.

The first hint of disagreement came then, the plan for an early wedding being suddenly abandoned and announcement made that the ceremony had been postponed until Autumn.

It was later learned that the postponement was due to the fact that Mr. Bacon, who is a staunch Protestant of Puritan stock, found himself unable to subscribe to the requirements of his prospective bride's faith. Whether a family council was held at the time cannot be learned. But Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon returned to Paris and it was announced that the engagement had been broken.

Letter Carrier Goes on Strike

HAMPTON BEACH, N. H., July 2.—George E. Garland, rural letter carrier, has refused to work for the compensation which the Postal Department has seen fit to give him and cottage owners have to travel to the postoffice for their mail. The postal authorities and the postman have been unable to reach any agreement as to salary.

Boston & Maine Adds 1,500 Section Hands

The department of maintenance of way has added between 1,200 and 1,500 men to the several section crews of the Boston & Maine railroad. The additional hands have in years past been put on in May and June, but owing to the retrenchment wave the section forces were kept on a Winter basis until the present time.

Suffrage Rider to Be Given Lawn Party

Mrs. Claiborne Catlin, who saw started to tour the State on horseback to aid the suffrage cause, will be tendered a lawn party today at the home of Mrs. Florence Harding of Mansfield. The proceeds of the fete will be given to Mrs. Catlin.

Canadian Club Holds Big Picnic

The annual picnic of the Canadian Club of Boston was held at the country estate of George G. Crocker in South Sudbury. Athletic sports were the features enjoyed most by the 500 who attended. The affair was under the direction of Gilbert N. Stewart, president of the club, and John E. Marston.

Correct Way to Treat Skin Diseases

Both air and water seem to have a bad effect upon skin diseases like Eczema, of which there are many forms. Keeping out the water and air is the first thing to do. By using Cadum, the well known remedy for skin diseases, air and water are excluded, because Cadum contains petrolatum and wax, and these form a tight covering over the sore places upon the skin. Cadum also contains oil of cade, which has been successfully used many years by the medical profession in the treatment of Eczema and other skin trouble. If your skin is inflamed, irritated or sore, get a 10c box of Cadum of your druggist and try it. The 25c size box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size and is cheaper to buy.

MISS CECELIA MAY, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Henry May of Washington, who once jilted Robert L. Bacon, Jr., and who is now abroad with her mother preparing for her coming wedding to Wilhelm Vom Rath of the German embassy.

Bank Cashier Tells of Old Fake Robbery

SAYRE, Okla., July 2.—How he staged a fake robbery six years ago and obtained $5,000 from the First State Bank of Texola, Okla., of which he was cashier, was told to Justice of the Peace here by C. W. Jones, in a voluntary confession, according to the justice. He was jailed after his surrender to the justice.

Schoolboy Inventor Tests Spark Plug

Arthur Carlson, eighteen, an Oliver Ames High schoolboy, of North Easton, has returned from a 1,500-mile automobile trip, during which time he tested a new spark-plug which he invented. He recently was commended by the United States government for his invention of an attachment for a wireless apparatus.

Cummins for Law Limit Upon Capital

WASHINGTON, July 2.—An arbitrary legal limit on the amount of capital to be allowed in a single corporation engaged in any particular line of business was advocated in the Senate by Senator Cummins. He said he would limit the capitalization of any single company in the steel business to $500,000,000.

Oppose Pardon for J. N. Coldwell

The Pardon Committee of the Governor's Council has unanimously recommended that the latter refuse a pardon to Joseph N. Coldwell, an I. W. W. leader now serving a year's term in the house of correction as the result of being convicted on an assault charge growing out of the Hoopedale and Milford strike disturbances.

ROOSEVELT MAY HEAD TICKET IN NEW YORK STATE

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—It is here possibility that Colonel Roosevelt may after all change his decision not to run for Governor by Fall. It is hinted now, after a talk with a mixed delegation of admirers upon his return from Pittsburgh.

It was put squarely up to Colonel Roosevelt that he owed it to the independent voters of the State—Progressives, Republicans and Democrats alike—to put aside his own preference and consent to lead the fight. The Progressive Assemblymen pointed out that the Taft and Wilson voters of the delegation—business men of Harlem—represented an independent element among the voters whose support in the State campaign would be appreciated.

The Colonel said today:

"I feel impressed and touched by the representations made to me by the men of different political parties."

His broke off right there to say he had better not dictate anything. But he wanted to think over what the delegation had urged before going further. Not one word more would he say of the governorship.

The most important new development is that Colonel Roosevelt in all probability will not be obliged to give up his campaign this Fall on account of his voice. His throat specialist said that, if he would rest for six weeks, he would probably be in as good voice as ever.

Dr. Curtis said to the AMERICAN correspondent:

"With proper precautions Colonel Roosevelt, in my opinion, may risk the experiment of doing work not strenuous and leave the question of giving up entirely until we see the effect of several speeches upon his vocal chords.

"No one can tell until the test is made.

"Colonel Roosevelt is suffering of relaxation of the intrinsic muscles of the larynx. The examination showed absolutely no local evidence of any organic trouble."

"I'm highly pleased with Dr. Curtis' report," was the Colonel's comment. He showed intense relief over the prospect of not being shut out of active campaigning.

May Enter Titanic Suits in England

NEW YORK, July 2.—Attorney representing claimants in suits for nearly $15,000,000, resulting from the loss on the Titanic, asked Federal Judge Hand to permit clients to withdraw from proceedings in this country as they may begin actions in England, where the law fixes the liability limit at $2,000,000. Decision was reserved.

NEW EVIDENCE INVOLVES WOMAN IN FREEPORT, L. I., DEATH MYSTERY

DECLARE WIFE OF DOCTOR WAS JEALOUS

Mrs. Carman, wife of the physician, had used a cablegram to spy on her husband, caused a sensation. Another, though milder one, developed when Sheriff Post of Nassau County learned that a week ago a rich and prominent resident of the South Shore district threatened to whip the doctor unless he stopped receiving visits from the man's wife.

WOMAN INVOLVED.

George Golden of Baldwin, L. I., who was in the reception room at Dr. Carman's home when the shooting occurred, told a curiously interesting story to District Attorney Smith. This story involved a woman who suddenly and mysteriously helped carry Mrs. Bailey's corpse to a couch and folded the dead woman's hands across her breast. Then she disappeared as quickly as she had come.

"I thought that it was Mrs. Carman, but as I had never seen her I couldn't be sure," said Golden. Mrs. Bailey and a man were in the doctor's outer office when I arrived there Tuesday evening. Presently Dr. Carman, who had been eating his dinner, appeared at the door and signalled Mrs. Bailey to enter his consulting room. She did so. We could hear their voices in friendly conversation for about five minutes. Then there was a scuffling of feet and the scraping of chairs as though they had arisen.

"In a few minutes we heard Mrs. Bailey laugh and then they seemed to sit down again and resume their conversation. Then I heard the breaking of glass, followed by a pistol shot. Dr. Carman with a white face appeared at the door supporting Mrs. Bailey in his arms. The woman murmured, 'My God, I've been shot.' Then Dr. Carman cried, 'Get help right away.'

MYSTERIOUS MAN DISAPPEARS.

"Dr. Carman stretched Mrs. Bailey upon the floor and as he did a woman, who was sobbing and wringing her hands, burst into the room. She came so quickly I did not note from what direction she appeared. She helped Dr. Carman stretch the body upon the couch and then she folded the hands of the victim upon her breast. At the time I thought she was Mrs. Carman.

"I ran from the room and started around the house to see if I could find anyone on the lawn. I found the window screen propped open with a stick so that the murderer would have an easier time in breaking the glass. I saved the stick and turned it over to the authorities, thinking they might want it for finger prints. In the meantime the mysterious woman disappeared as quickly as she came.

WIFE ADMITS JEALOUSY.

Although the authorities have accepted the alibi of the doctor's wife, they declared today her admission of jealousy and discoveries surrounding her installation of the dictagraph in her husband's office were of tremendous importance in their work over the mystery.

Mrs. Carman declared not long ago that she had seen the doctor kiss a nurse in his office and that many women visited him there who were not patients.

The next twenty-four hours are expected to bring a decisive and dramatic second act in the tragedy. There seems to be little doubt an arrest in the case will be made soon, but of whom and when, neither the officials of the county nor those of the village will make any definite statement.

The question of a motive is puzzling the authorities. The officials heard a story that about a year ago there had been trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Bailey because the husband was seen by his wife at Jamaica talking with an attractive young teacher from the Hempstead High School.

HUSBAND ELIMINATED.

Several friends of the family admitted this was so. But they said the linen had been smoothed long since and that the Baileys were apparently as happy as could be. Anyhow, Mr. Bailey's presence in his own home, five miles away, at the time of the shooting eliminated him.

Those who have been watching the methods of the investigation to date are wondering if Norton will call neighbors of Carman, who are said to fix the time of shooting fully one-half hour before the time Dr. Carman states it took place, and more than an hour previous to the time he reported the occurrence to the police.

Coroner Norton's attitude during the investigation has been a source of considerable comment. He was one of the first officials at the scene of the murder. He made a thorough investigation, yet failed to note the powder marks on Dr. Carman's instrument cabinet or the nick caused by the bullet. It remained for reporters to discover these all important marks.

DR. CARMAN SILENCED.

He appeared vexed when he heard photographers had taken photographs of the room in which Mrs. Bailey was murdered and refused further admittance to the place. Despite the fact that no charge was made against the physician and he was his own free agent, Coroner Norton instructed Dr. Carman not to make any statements to the public.

When District Attorney Smith was telling newspapermen the happenings at the questioning of Dr. Carman's household, someone asked: "Where did Mrs. Carman say she was on the morning and afternoon of the shooting?"

"Oh, she told us every move she made that day, but we cannot remember everything she said or every place she told us," was the reply.

MRS. CARMAN TALKS.

The dictagraph had been used by Mrs. Carman to overhear the doctor's conversations with women. The receiving end of it was in a closet in her bedroom. The transmitting end was concealed behind an instrument case in the physician's consultation room.

It was in working order at 5 o'clock Tuesday night when Mrs. Bailey was talking with the doctor within a few feet of the transmitter. At that time Mrs. Carman was upstairs in her room where she could hear, if she were listening.

Mrs. Carman admitted she had first rented, then bought, the dictagraph. She confessed that she was jealous of the women who came to consult with her husband, especially since she peered through a window looking upon his office from the lawn, some months ago, and caught Miss Missing, a trained nurse. She acknowledged that it was she who ripped the machine apart and hid it in the attic.

She said she felt she had a right to know what her husband was talking about with his woman visitors for the sake of her own peace of mind.

"I took the dictagraph down and put it away because, under the circumstances, I did not want my husband to know that I had been using it. I did not want him to feel any worse than he already felt."

As to the happenings of Tuesday night, Mrs. Carman said she was as much in the dark as anybody else.

"Yes, I was in the room where the receiving end of the dictagraph was concealed in my cabinet," she said. "But I did not use it that evening. I never saw Mrs. Bailey in my life. I did not know that she was downstairs consulting the doctor. Indeed, I did not know any woman was there. I was lying on my bed, ill of a headache, when the shot was fired.

"I did not go downstairs after the shot. I heard the commotion—wondered what it was about. But in a few minutes my sister, Mrs. Ida Powell, came to me and told me there was no use of my going down. She went and saw the dead woman and came back and told me what had happened."

"We have become convinced that at the moment the shot was fired which killed Mrs. Bailey Mrs. Carman was, as she says, upstairs lying upon her bed in a kimono," said District Attorney Smith. "We have not only her own word for this but the testimony of her mother, Mrs. Platt Conklin, and her sister, Mrs. Ida Powell."

William H. Bailey, husband of the victim, declared today:

"I don't know why she went to Dr. Carman. I never heard her speak of him and I don't believe she ever consulted him in her life. I do not know that anything was the matter with her."

STORY OF DOCTOR.

Dr. Carman could not say why Mrs. Bailey had come to his office. "I was at dinner when I was told that she was in my office," he said. "When I finished dinner I saw her and two young men in my ante-room. I called her in and closed the door.

"It is not true that she consulted me about approaching maternity or anything of that nature.

"It was a few minutes after 8 o'clock, as nearly as I can judge, when I gave her the medicine. She started toward the door, asking me if I thought she could catch the 8:30 trolley for her home. I told her I thought so, and was just about to escort her out of the room when the glass smashed behind me.

"I turned quickly and saw a hand protrude through my office window. I cannot say whether it was a man's hand or a woman's, but I think it was a man's. It was white, surely. I realized next that the hand gripped a revolver.

"I am sure I have no idea why the woman in question was shot dead in Hempstead. And I cannot say whether the shot was fired at her or at me."

As far back as May 19 a well-dressed woman went into the office of a dictagraph company and asked for a conference.

"I'm the wife of Dr. Edwin Carman of Freeport, L. I., and I want a dictagraph because there are a lot of women visiting my husband's office, and all of them are not patients, by any means," she said. "In fact, I have long suspected one nurse, and the other night I looked from outside the house, through a window into my husband's office, and saw him kiss this nurse.

"I wouldn't divorce him. I couldn't. I have a twelve-year-old daughter, and I would not allow her to get mixed up in such an affair. I would simply have my own woman in the house, and force my husband for the child's sake, to observe the outward conventions, at least."

Finally the agent agreed to rent a dictagraph to Mrs. Carman, charging her $11 extra for installation.

She described the house, saying she wished the transmitter installed behind a bookcase in her husband's office, and the wire run to a receiver in a clothes closet in her room upstairs.

A few days after this interview a letter was received from Mrs. Carman saying her husband would be out the following afternoon and the company sent a man to install the instrument.

Nothing more was heard from Mrs. Carman by the dictagraph company until June 23. On that day she went to the company's office with her mother and said she wished to purchase the instrument as she could have it permanently.

"A woman came to my husband's office the other day that I was interested in," she said. "I listened, but did not hear everything, for the windows were open, and besides they spoke in whispers. But I learned something that makes me want to keep the instrument there all the time."

HEADMASTER IS ARRAIGNED; DENIES GUILT

J. Gardner Bassett, for forty years teacher and principal of the Bigelow Grammar School in South Boston, was arraigned in the South Boston court today before Associate Justice Edward L. Logan on a charge of the larceny of $300 from Margaret Hale of No. 640 Huntington avenue.

There were prominent South Boston people in the courtroom when Mr. Bassett was arraigned. Through his attorney he pleaded not guilty.

Judge Logan asked Inspector O'Neil, in charge of the case, whether he wished a continuance. "Yes, for a week, if possible," the inspector said. Mr. Bassett was accordingly held for one week under his same bail of $1,500.

Miss Hale, who makes the complaint against Bassett, is a widow, lives at No. 640 Huntington avenue, and has an employment office at No. 42 Winter street. She claims that Bassett sold her stock in the Ohio Cement & Mining Company in 1912 under false pretenses.

The warrant for Bassett's arrest was issued June 25, but he was not arrested until he surrendered yesterday at police headquarters, and Assistant District Attorney Fielding placed his bail at $1,500.

Mr. Bassett is sixty-three, and lives at No. 22 Summer street, Bridgewater. For seventeen years he has been headmaster of the Bigelow School. His salary is $3,180 a year. In addition he ran a summer hotel for several years at Falmouth and Oak Bluffs.

He refused today to discuss the charge against him.

Turns Burglar to Get Story Plots

LOS ANGELES, July 2—Frederick J. Jackson, author, amazed a large circle of friends by causing his own arrest on a charge of burglary. Admitting that he had stolen, Jackson was locked up. "I did it for the sake of realism," said Jackson, who declared he was trying to get a thrill for a new story and had to live the part of the hero.

Crops to Fill Train 7,000 Miles Long

PORTLAND, Ore., July 2—"It will require a train 7,000 miles long to move America's big crop this year," said D. W. Campbell, assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific Road, on his return from a four months' stay in the East.

ARREST TWO IN WHOLESALE SHOE THEFT

The police have arrested a man whom they charge with the theft of those two wagonloads of shoes stolen early this month from Boston merchants. He is Joseph Bloom, twenty-three, of Dunklee street, Roxbury. Duncan Magrath was arrested as an accessory.

On June 12, a horse and team were stolen from in front of No. 48 Summer street. On the team was a load of eleven cases of shoes, the whole valued at $1,780, the property of Jenkins' Rockland Express. This horse and team were later recovered in the South Boston freight yards. June 27, a horse and wagon and sixty cases of shoes were stolen from the business district. They were the property of David S. Woodberry, and were valued at $3,642. His store is at No. 247 Atlantic avenue.

June 16, a horse and wagon with $1,000 worth of merchandise belonging to the People's Express was also stolen. The police were notified that the shoes were wrapped in a peculiar paper. Yesterday they met a man on Atlantic avenue, carrying a package wrapped in this paper. They asked where he bought them, and he led them to a cellar on Cotton Alley, where, it is alleged they found Bloom and the missing goods.

Danvers Menaced by $10,000 Lumber Fire

A $10,000 fire, which started in the Calvin Putnam Lumber Company's yard at No. 158 Liberty street, Danvers port, and later spread to the Ira Story leather factory, threatened for a time to destroy the entire section of the town, early today.

A high wind was blowing and sparks fell on the roofs of many adjoining tenement houses, but the heavy rainfall prevented any damage. Peabody and Beverly sent aid.

Marconi Now Plans Wireless Ocean Talk

This prophecy was made by Godfrey Isaacs in evidence given before the Dominions' Royal Commission.

Extensive preparations have been made for the celebration of the Fourth of July in Dedham by the Pine Heights Improvement Association. The program consists of sports in the afternoon for boys and girls, ball game between two fast teams representing that section of the town. In the evening at 7.30 there will be a canoe pageant on the Charles River, from Caledonia Grove to First Pond in Dedham, which will be followed by fireworks. Prescription Sent Ship by Wireless

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2—Wireless on the vessel Nann Smith, Portland to San Francisco, served a new purpose when a prescription, flashed over the ocean from the Central Emergency Hospital in San Francisco, probably saved the life of Mrs. J. Chicago Firm Sells Town for $900,000

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 2—The Hines Lumber Company of Chicago has sold a town, the village of Mason, to people living in the town for about $900,000.

WRIGHT GIRL TO CONFRONT VREELAND

The Dorchester police today planned to send Special Officer Patrick J. Williams to New York to bring back Louise E. Wright, the sixteen-year-old Neponset girl who, it is alleged, ran away from home with Perry H. Vreeland, a member of the crew of the cup-yacht Vanitie.

Vreeland is in the Charles street jail facing trial on a charge of enticing the girl away from home. His hearing is set for July 8. Should the girl be brought back to Boston to face the charge of being a stubborn child, she may confront Vreeland in court on that date.

Mrs. Joseph Wright of No. 25 Erickson street, Neponset, mother of the girl, was at the Dorchester Court today. After talking with Officer Williams she said: "My daughter is to be brought back. I can't say yet whether I shall press the charge of being a stubborn child, which I have laid against her. It was a letter to me from her that told us where she was in New York, and that resulted in her arrest."

Vreeland is held in $1,000. He met the girl while the Vanitie was at Lawley's shipyards.

REPORT 50,000 RIFLES LANDED IN COUNTY MAYO

LONDON, July 2—A rumor was current today that 50,000 rifles had been landed on the coast of County Mayo for the Nationalist volunteers. It could not be confirmed.

Later volunteers have been notified, according to the Belfast Echo, that the time has arrived when, on an order from their commanding officer, the men may carry arms openly, and that any attempt to seize the arms of the volunteers who may be carrying them in accordance with this order, is to be resisted.

The precise effect of the House of Lords' proposed amendment to the Government's amending bill will not be known until the Home Rule bill reaches the committee stage next week, but favorable omens are drawn by the London morning newspapers from the conciliatory tone of the speeches on both sides of the House of Lords for a renewal of the negotiations between the party leaders which it is believed will result in an agreement.

The Daily Mail asserts that Premier Asquith's attitude has undergone a modification and that he now is ready to grant exclusion to Ulster by statute instead of by the ballot.

THIS 'AD' FUSSED UP CAMBRIDGE

The Cambridge Board of Aldermen is a complete vaudeville show, according to a two-column advertisement in the Cambridge Standard.

The ad is unsigned, but the Aldermen credit it to the Standard itself, deeming it an "office ad."

In consequence of this belief the Aldermen have voted not to give the Standard any more city advertising.

The business office of the Standard was asked over the telephone today who framed that ad. The reply was a series of chuckles.

The ad appeared just before the last meeting of the Aldermen, in double-column display on the front page, as follows:

Tonight at 8 o'clock, Grand Municipal Vaudeville, Cambridge City Hall. Admission Free.

Hear the Harmonious Insurgent Quartet (Aldermen Mullen, Murphy, Gaffney and Reed) in their stupendous song success "Mulligan, Well Get You Yet."

Laugh at the funny antics of Comedian "Charlie" Murphy in his original recitation, "Woodman, Spare Them Dear Old Pops."

See the marvelous quick change artist, "Johnny" McDonald, in his weekly encore, "Shall I Insure or Stand Pat."

Come early and avoid the rush!

Standing room only after the 5th beating!

Special section reserved for East Cambridge contingent.

The "insurgent quartet" referred to has been fighting Alderman Peter J. Nelligan, president of the board, since the first of the year.

When the ad. appeared Aldermen Mullen and Murphy "roasted" the Standard in the board meeting, and, under suspension of the rules, rushed through the motion taking all city advertising from the Standard.

The motion went through unanimously, the entire board agreeing on one thing at least—that the derisive attitude of the Standard was not to be tolerated.

All this has nothing to do with the quarrel between Mayor Good and the ministers, who say the city needs to be "cleaned up." That is another story.

House Laughs at Solon's Honesty Aim in Mileage Debate

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Representative Candler of Mississippi and Representative Morrison of Indiana, both Democrats, had a lively setto over the mileage question. Mr. Candler spoke for five-cent mileage while the Senate was fighting to keep at twenty.

"Have you ever introduced a motion to strike out all mileage?" demanded Mr. Morrison of Mr. Candler.

"I voted with all the cowards every time the question has come before the House. I followed the mock heroes every time. I voted to quit being guilty of grand larceny and to become a petty thief. I want to be honest."

The House broke into roars of laughter.

MARTIAL LAW TO HALT RIOTS IN BOSNIA

SARAJEVO, Bosnia, July 2.—Martial law replaced civil government throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina today, but rioting continued at many points with Catholics and mussulmen attacking Servian churches and residences. Several thousand additional troops have been ordered to the provinces from posts in Austria. Besides burning the Servian church at Stolac mobs have destroyed several other buildings and are threatening to kill all the Serbs in the town.

The precautions being taken by the Austrian government, as a result of the disorder growing out of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand, indicate a fear that the rioters will commit outrages that will cause widespread rebellion among the Servian inhabitants of the two provinces. They are in the majority and have always resented Austrian domination.

M. Nicolit, a Servian agitator, is said to have been arrested and executed in connection with the investigation into the plot that resulted in the assassination.

The international situation involving Servia and Austria threatens to become acute as a result of the latter country's demand that the Belgrade government institute a rigid investigation of the conspiracy and punish the plotters. This demand is a direct charge that the assassins were given aid in Servia and is likely to strain the relations of the two countries almost if not fully, to the breaking point.

The demand for the inquiry was sent to Belgrade today by the Austrian foreign office. It was given to the Servian premier by the Austrian envoy.

German Rulers Send Sympathy to Orphan

VIENNA, July 2.—The German Emperor, who will attend the funeral of the murdered Archduke Franz Ferdinand, sent the following touching telegram to the orphaned Princess Sophie, signed by both himself and the Kaiserin:

"We can hardly find words to tell you children how heartily our hearts bleed for you in your immense sorrow. To have spent only a fortnight ago such a happy time with your parents, and now to know you are in such terrible trouble.

"May God be near you and give you strength to bear this blow. A parent's blessing extends beyond the grave. (Signed.)

Baron Newton Flays Sir Thomas Lipton on Canteen Scandal

LONDON, July 2.—In a discussion in the House of Lords over the canteen scandals which culminated in the conviction of nine British army officers and eight civilian employes of Lipton's Limited, Baron Newton, referring to the position of Sir Thomas Lipton, said:

"If I were chairman of a company which had been engaged in proceedings of that kind, I should be inclined to seek temporary seclusion rather than be continually advertising myself in every way."

Actor Kelly Runs Man Down with Auto

NEWBURYPORT, July 2.—William J. Kelly, an actor of New York, whose Summer home is in this city ran down "Jerry" Lynch, forty-five, while driving through Market Square in his automobile, and injured him so severely that he may die. Kelly went to the police station and reported the accident, but was not held when witnesses absolved him of all blame.

PLEDGE BRISTOL STEAMSHIP LINE TO BOSTON SOON

An additional impetus to the boom for the port of Boston is given by the promise of Hugh Bancroft, retiring chairman of the Port Directors, that a steamship line may be established between Boston and Bristol, England, within a very short time.

The news came after a conference between Mr. Bancroft and Henry L. Riseley and E. Manning Lewis, who are making a tour of the world, visiting various trade centres and seeking to acquaint American exporters with the developments about Bristol.

"Some time ago I learned that Mr. Riseley and Mr. Lewis were intending to make a tour of the world, and that Boston was not listed among their stops," said Mr. Bancroft. "I immediately got in touch with them and extended them an invitation to come here and confer upon the ... ter, which they accepted. RAILROAD RATE DECISION DUE IN TEN DAYS

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, July 2—The whole business and corporation and shipping world is waiting with intense anxiety the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroad rates. There are a thousand speculations as to why the decision has been so long delayed.

I am in a position to say positively and upon authority that not one of the many rumors as to the delay is based upon fact. A commissioner, whose word is his bond and as standard as a Supreme Court decision, tells me that the commission is four square with all conditions and as independent as a wood sawyer.

He declares that his colleagues and himself are not United States Senators, and that all the power and influence of the President would not swerve the commission a hair's breadth from its conception of justice or move it to any mere political consideration in this supreme matter of justice and the law.

PURE QUESTION OF WORK.

He declares that presidents and railroad magnates and shippers are all on a level before this commission, which prides itself upon its record, its liberty and its independence of any outside influence. "In point of fact," said our commissioner, "the sole and single reason of the commission's delay in filing the decision in the commission's absolute incapacity to finish the work a day earlier than it will do. The commission's final decision will be upon the exhaustive hearing and reading of 20,000 pages of testimony and evidence and the consideration of 17,000 different tariffs. It is impossible to make haste through such a sea of facts and opinions as these."

The best possible information that could obtain or that the commission itself could give as to the time of the announcement is that it must be within the next ten or twelve days. I happen to know that some of the commissioners are planning to begin their Summer holiday July 11 or 12.

A CITADEL OF SILENCE.

As to what the commission's decision will be, I defy any man in an honorable way to find out. It would be difficult to find out in a dishonorable way—so carefully and vigorously is the decision guarded. Perhaps no citadel of silence ever erected in national legislation has been so subtly and ceaselessly assaulted by every method known to journalism.

Because the commission firmly believes that its premature and incomplete report would lead to unfortunate business results and subject the commissioners to intolerable pressure on either side, it has taken extraordinary care to keep the public from knowing anything.

The commission itself is an unreachable phalanx. Not even Joe Folk, its solicitor, knows what its right hands are going to do.

A VERY CLERK DRILLED.

Every clerk and employe has been drilled in the understanding that if he should leak or betray an item of information his official career would be at an end. And when finally the decision is ready for the printer, the commission's most trusted employes will go with it in sections, watch every type the sets itself, every hand that touches it, and stay with it until it is complete and ready for distribution—as relentlessly and ably is the decision guarded.

I am willing to stake my whole judgment upon the prediction that when this railroad rate decree is announced it will embody the absolutely best judgment of at least five of the fairest, most fearless and incorruptible men that have served this Republic in this generation.

Pope Is "Nice Old Man With Sweet Smile," Says Middy

ROME, July 2.—Annapolis midshipmen, 550 strong, from the battleships Missouri, Idaho and Illinois, lying at Naples, are the heroes of the hour in Rome. They were received today by the Pope in the Consistory Hall of the Vatican, the officers afterward being received by Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State.

One of the middies said: "We are having a bully time, but I wish it were not so hot. We have to wear thick uniforms because of seeing the Pope, who is not a bit like what we thought, but just a nice old man with kind eyes and a sweet smile. He seems to understand everybody."

LURED FROM CONVENT

When Fate chooses to punish, the innocent are sometimes made victims so that the guilty may learn by the suffering of a loved one. To punish Philip Gould for his life of sin, his daughter Barbara was lured from the safety of a convent into a life of shame, while he had to see her, down into ruin, powerless to aid her. Does sin go unpunished in this world? Read "Barbara," by Frances Aymar Mathews, which is published complete in the July number of Cosmopolitan Magazine. The answer is written there in words of fire. Carberry's Widow Is Administratrix

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Carberry of Brookline, widow of John W. Carberry, the well-known newspaperman, was appointed administratrix of her husband's estate by Judge Flint of the Norfolk Probate Court in Dedham. Mr. Carberry left $1,100 personal property.

COURT PRAISES 'SPEEDER' FOR MERCY ERRAND

Gilbert H. Hood, secretary of H. P. Hood & Sons Co., was allowed to plead nolo to an overspeeding charge and the case was filed by Associate Judge Stearns in Chelsea District Court today because Hood was hurrying to superintend free distribution of his company's milk to Salem fire refugees.

"No man should be punished on such a mission," said the court. "On the testimony of Officer Bartlett that nobody was on the boulevard at the time I will accept a plea of nolo and put the case on file."

According to testimony, Mr. Hood was speeding down Revere Beach boulevard in his automobile yesterday afternoon. He wanted to get to Salem before the milk distribution began, to see that everybody got enough. He was breezing along by Point of Pines when Harvey P. Bartlett, motorcycle officer of the Metropolitan Park police, spied him, gave chase and, after a stiff brush of a mile, caught and stopped him. Bartlett took Mr. Hood's name, warned him to go slower and let him proceed. He said that Hood was making thirty-five miles an hour, while the speed limit there is twenty.

Daniel J. Daley, one of the Brookline assessors, was counsel for Hood. He admitted that Hood was going pretty fast, but laid stress upon the nature of his errand and the fact that the boulevard was practically empty of traffic at the time.

William J. Kiley Dies Suddenly

William J. Kiley, president of the South Boston Co-operative Bank, was found dead in bed today at his home, No. 724 East Second street, South Boston. Medical Examiner Magrath will perform an autopsy. Mr. Kiley's death is thought to be due to an accident. Last evening he tried to board a Rowe's Wharf car at Washington and Summer streets, and fell. He was found to be suffering from abrasions, and was treated at the Relief Hospital. When members of the family went to call him today they found him dead.

'Furies' Howl and Kick in Wales Court

CARNARVON, Wales, July 2.—Two militant suffragettes, known as "Miss Lloyd" and "Miss North," were sentenced to three months each in the Assize Court here today. Before sentence was imposed they created a scene unique in the Welsh courts.

The women, who were charged with window smashing, fought and screamed continuously throughout their trials. Their arms were pinioned to prevent them from throwing missiles at the judge. This angered them to such an extent that the "furies" threw themselves prone upon the floor, where they howled and kicked. They fought furiously when court attendants attempted to quell the uproar.

SAFETY DAY BROUGHT FEW ACCIDENTS

The Boston Elevated is glad to be able to report that not a single accident to a passenger riding on its cars or a single collision between cars occurred on Safety Day.

The only accident reported to the company during the entire twenty-four hours occurred as a result of persons who were outside of the cars not observing the Safety First principle. They were as follows:

Last evening William J. Kiley ran into a moving car, lost his hold and fell to the street. At Dudley street a woman walking on the platform was struck by the overhang of the rear end of a car upon a curve and was knocked down. On Dudley street a teamster driving a horse swung to the left and the front wheel of the team struck the running board of the car. A driver of a team suddenly turned in front of a car on Washington street and the team was hit before the motorman could possibly stop the car. A small boy was crossing the street at Eighth and Mercy streets, South Boston, when his hat blew off. He turned around to get it and ran against the corner of the fender of a car.

Fitzgerald Will Umpire Ball Game

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald has pledged himself to one of the most critical undertakings of his long and picturesque career. He has agreed to umpire the baseball game between the Jefferson Club and the North End Knights of Columbus, which is to be the athletic feature of the annual picnic of St. Stephen's parish at Columbia Grove, West Roxbury, next Wednesday, July 8. The umpire will be watched with unremitting jealousy by the "fans" of either side. There will be old folks' dancing at the picnic and young folks, too. The committee announces games of all kinds for the boys and girls. Henry S. Fitzgerald is chairman of the picnic committee, which is working in cooperation with Rev. R. F. McLeod, pastor of St. Stephen's, and Rev. John H. Powers.

Hunt for Would-Be Train Wreckers

HARTFORD, Ct., July 2.—State detectives under chief James Sullivan are scouring the country for two men who attempted to wreck the 9:14 o'clock express from New York yesterday. A posse has trailed two men into the Berlin Hills and expect to arrest them this evening. Resistance is expected, however, as the alleged train wreckers are believed to be armed. The detectives say that robbery was the motive.

S. Bergson & Son, Who Are Retiring From Business

Our sales last Saturday and each day since prove that this is the sale hit of the season—for in spite of the peculiar weather, men and young men have been buying these suits in great shape. There's no hard luck story about this sale. S. Bergson & Son (Essex Street, Boston) are going out of business—they wanted to sell their made-up stock, in one lump, for spot cash. As we always pay cash and could handle the stock, we naturally took it.

The suits are strictly new and will meet the personal ideas and the individual needs of the fashionably dressed young man as well as the business man. The one strong point about S. Bergson & Son's clothing is the good tailoring throughout—and this, together with "Your money back if you want it," makes every suit you buy a doubly safe investment.

Suits S. Bergson & Son expected would retail at $12.50—we now price at $7.50. Take our word for it, no suits equalling these fabrics, lining and tailoring will likely be offered again this season at so low a price as $7.50. Worsteds, cassimeres, blue serges and a small lot of double breasted black Thibet suits.

STATE TO PUNISH SWINDLING INSURANCE AGENTS PREYING ON SALEM FIRE VICTIM

WALSH ACTS QUICKLY AT HURLEY'S APPEAL

Mayor John F. Hurley of Salem today appealed to Governor Walsh for help in fighting insurance swindlers who, he say, are inducing poor people burned out by the Salem fire to settle their loses for less than the amount to which they are entitled. Governor Walsh at once replied that steps would be taken in the matter, and that any agents found to have so acted would lose their licenses and suffer undesirable publicity. The letters which passed between Mayor Hurley and Governor Walsh follow:

Governor David I. Walsh:

My dear Sir—We find that one of the insurance companies in Salem is buying up its own policies at reduced rates. I don't know whether it is in the law to prevent this, but will you be kind enough to call the attention of the insurance commissioners to it and have them investigate the subject? The Board of Directors have passed a vote this afternoon, in which they authorize the city solicitor to take up any cases where persons have agreed to settlement of their insurance.

Yours very truly,
JOHN F. HURLEY,
Mayor of Salem.

WALSH ORDERS PROBE.

John F. Hurley, Mayor, Salem.

Dear Sir—Your letter of July first, informing me that one of the insurance companies in Salem is buying up its own policies at reduced rates, has just been received.

I have requested the Insurance Commissioner of the Commonwealth to give his immediate attention to this matter and make a thorough investigation. Let me assure you and the people of Salem that if any such practice is discovered the proper remedy will be applied, and that means that the insurance agents found guilty will have their licenses immediately revoked and wide spread publicity given the public as to what insurance companies are engaged in this nefarious business.

Very truly yours,
DAVID I. WALSH.

This was payday in Salem. Fully 5,000 men and women, mostly fire sufferers, braved the rain to get the money due them, nearly $50,000 in all, for the week ending last Thursday, the day of the fire. The average wages paid out by the big mills and factories today was $10. The various employers hired halls for this so as to save employes from being drenched in a terrific downpour of rain. The total paid to sufferers was about $50,000.

GIRLS SELL TAGS.

Sixty Haverhill girls sold tags on the Salem streets today.

The committee on food supply announced that the meal hours at the armory for fire victims would be between 8 and 11 a. m. and 2 and 5 p. m. At Forest River Park camp 1,700 refugees were served with the following:

BREAKFAST.
Bacon and eggs
Bread and butter
Coffee
All the milk they wanted to drink.
DINNER.
Tomato soup
Beef soup
Boiled potatoes. Bread and butter.
Coffee.
SUPPER.
Baked Beans
Potatoes. Bread and Butter.
Milk and Coffee.
Prunes. Rhubarb Sauce.

The waterproof tents proved a godsend to the refugees today. There was little or no discomfort under the canvas, and only those who ventured outside got wet. A corps of doctors made the rounds to look after colds and guard against pneumonia.

Because of the rain there were no outside policemen on duty today. The health committee reported there were no new cases of contagious disease.

PUT 200 TO WORK.

The P. A. Field Company, which was burned out by the fire and which employed 100 women, today gave work to twice that number, the company being determined to give as much work to as many as it can so as to do its share in tiding over the present disaster.

A committee was appointed at a town meeting in Nahant to solicit funds for the relief of the Salem fire sufferers. Donations are to be sent to Archibald Blanchard, treasurer, or handed to any of the committee. All donations will be publicly acknowledged and will be turned over in due course to the American National Red Cross. The committee includes: Daniel G. Pinnerty, chairman; Winthrop T. Hodges, Ellerton James, Samuel Hammond Lawrence, Sherman, George H. Green, Frank F. Stuart, Rev. William T. O'Connor, Rev. Elmer Jones, Thomas Welch, William F. Waters, Miss Emma Rodman, Mrs. Henry Sigourney, Mrs. L. F. Sherman, Mrs. F. A. Wilson, Mrs. Dana A. Sanborn, Archibald Blanchard, treasurer.

Miss Mabel Boardman, chairman of the National Relief Board of the American Red Cross, today issued this appeal at Salem on behalf of the board:

RED CROSS APPEAL.

The need of assistance for Salem is much greater than at first believed. Thousands of persons have not only lost their homes, generally uninsured, but the destruction of the large mills has deprived them of their work.

Thousands are living in tents and must be cared for until work and shelter can be obtained for them.

Massachusetts has always given most generously for the sufferers in disasters in other parts of the country. Her people deserve assistance in this serious calamity. The American Red Cross appeals to our people for funds to aid these thousands in distress.

Contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross at Washington.

Salem's spirited war on insurance swindlers and landlords grafting on trouble by forcing up rents was today extended to a band of white slavers who made their appearance at the relief camps in the stricken city.

The Salem police discovered several cases where girls had been approached by men who offered them transportation to Boston and other cities, giving them addresses in questionable districts.

TO RESIST EVICTION.

Quick justice is promised today for any of those men captured by the police. Private and detectives have been warned to keep a sharp lookout for them.

Several of the landlords who have raised rents, finding that there appears to be no legal redress for the tenants, have threatened those who complain with eviction, it was learned today.

That the tenants will resist eviction was also made known.

Trustees of the Salem Savings Bank and other Witch City institutions of mercy have decided that in all cases where mortgages are held on tenement property an attempt by the owners to increase rents will result in measures for foreclosure.

It became known today that the owner of a dwelling on Park square, Salem, occupied by a poor family that had always paid rent regularly and in caring without cost for seventeen sufferers by the fire, gave notice that unless assent was immediately made to pay $10 additional rent a month ejectment would follow in forty-eight hours.

Another case was made known on Hazel street, where the head of a family was told that unless he would pay $9 per month additional rent his household effects would be thrown into the ruins near his home. He has occupied the tenement for years and always paid his rent regularly.

PAYS OUT $15,000.

Michael L. Sullivan, city solicitor; Ex-Senator William D. Chapple, William H. Henry and other members of the Essex Bar Association are among those who declared that attempts to increase rents will be resisted.

Civic and military authorities continue to be annoyed by imposters. In the midst of the suffering many who have not lost the comforts of a home are securing under the claim of fire sufferers rations of food as well as clothing.

Governor Walsh has arranged for the full committee of $100 to meet with him in the State House today. When ways and means of raising more money and the best distribution of that already secured will be talked over.

DYNAMITE MORE BUILDINGS.

Traffic in Salem today will be diverted or stopped for a time while about thirty buildings on Lafayette and Boston streets are destroyed by dynamite. The rain has so soaked the mortar that the walls, some of them four stories in height, lean dangerously in the wind.

As fast as possible a temporary fire notification signal system is to be installed. Already the Salem department has received 6,000 feet of new hose to replace that which was rendered unfit by the fire, and expects 50 feet more within a few days.

Yesterday broke the record for the number of births in seven, including the first boy baby to be born, came into the world at the improvised Massachusetts Hospital in the old North Church on Essex street. In the same room and at almost the same hour, a French-American and an Italian-American woman gave birth to children.

The French woman had been implored by her relatives and friends to go to a hospital in Beverly, but refused to leave Salem. She declared that Salem was her home, where everything she possessed had been destroyed, and insisted that it was there that she wished her child to be born.

Within a few days all stagnant water within the limits of Salem will be oiled to prevent its use for drinking purposes. Already a number of swamps and pools have been treated in this way.

Physicians and nurses are engaged in watching the lines when food or clothing is given out, to see whether any are so physically weak from exposure or lack of nourishment that they need immediate care.

Extensive grafting upon the relief clothing supply for the Salem sufferers was revealed by an investigation by the Salem police cooperating with the police of neighboring cities and towns.

Much evidence has been gathered. Warrants have been issued for a number of offenders who have taken advantage of the situation to steal upon false pretences goods intended for victims of the conflagration.

Twenty search warrants for the homes of persons suspected of having proved on the relief committees have been issued by the authorities and the searches will be made today. Homes in Beverly, Peabody and Salem will be visited by the officers.

Inside the Salem department store and a number of officers from neighboring communities in plain clothes watched the Franklin Building, the headquarters for the distribution of clothing. No attempt was made to make arrests, but each suspected person was allowed to take away the goods. The police then followed the suspects to their homes and later demanded warrants. It is believed investigation will bring to light a large amount of stolen property.

UNITED SHOE AIDS SALEM EMPLOYES

If anyone in Salem knows anything concerning the whereabouts of J. Godbout and his family, the relief committee of the United Shoe Machinery Company at Beverly would like to hear from them. Out of the seventy employes of the company, representing a total of 315 people, Godbout, a foundry worker at the Beverly plant, is the only one not located and cared for. He lived at No. 35 Palmer street.

When the fire as Salem assumed the proportions of a catastrophe late Thursday afternoon, the relief committee of employes of the Beverly factory was promptly formed and word dispatched by special messenger to Salem asking that families in need of homes should be sent to Beverly at once. Following the messenger, a squad of automobiles was sent over the road and came back laden with fifty people, most of them mothers with young children. They were comfortably housed in the $40,000 clubhouse of the company's employes, where cots and emergency interior equipment had been placed by other members of the committee pending the arrival of the refugees.

After caring for the first groups of refugees, the factory committee turned its attention to locating and comfortably housing employes of the plant and their families. The condition of each family was investigated and arrangements were made to furnish all who were in need with orders on Beverly stores for coal, furniture and clothing. A thorough search was instituted in Beverly for tenements and flats and arrangements were made for bringing to Beverly all those who wished to settle down there, together with their belongings.

About seventy employes of the company, representing a total of three hundred and sixteen people, had been provided in this way with homes in Beverly. Over five hundred orders have been given for coal, clothing and furniture and over $7,000 has been advanced in this way and others to the company's employes. Members of the committee have superintended personally the investigation of all cases of suffering and have made the very best possible terms with the merchants and landlords with whom they had to deal.

Foresters to Help Members of Order

Chief Ranger John T. Kennedy of Sherwood Court of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters today sent out a notice to members to meet tomorrow evening in Cheverus Hall, No. 13 Harvard street, Boston, "to appropriate money to be sent to the aid of members of the order who lost their home in the Salem fire." "Over 200 Foresters were left destitute," the circular reads, "and the high standing committee has appealed to all courts in the order to give all the aid they possibly can as soon as possible."

Hurley Lost Rum of 1873 in Great Fire

Mayor Hurley came forward to confess today that among his losses in the conflagration were one barrel of rum and one barrel of whiskey, which had been in the Hurley cellar since 1873.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eyestrain because they do not know what to do. They strain their eyes at home reading or sewing, or at their employment, and do not realize that their eyes are the trouble in most cases. They neglect their eyes because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that only do more harm than good. Others, after being used two or three months, do not help their eyes more, rather than otherwise. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keep the eyes clean, sharpen the vision and quickly overcome inflammation and irritation, weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks use of Optona, good for the eyes and rental a valuable ingredient which would in the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and be convinced for once what real eye comfort is.

COBB PREDICTS HOT PENNANT FIGHT

Written for the Boston American.

By TY COBB.

There seems to be an entirely unwarranted belief in some quarters that the American and National League pennant races ended are as good as over.

Taking a broad view of the pennant campaign at this the last of June. There are three long months of battling ahead, and much may happen in that time.

Even the Cleveland club, which has been trailing the American circuit ever since the season started, could come through and grab the pennant if it had a phenomenal burst of speed, though this, of course, is not much of a possibility.

At the time of writing there are five clubs in each league within of a dozen games of the top, and that isn't very many with more than sixty to be played. In fact, it would be possible for the first and fifth clubs to change places in a single week if one grabbed all its games and the other dropped them all

JOB OFFERS DEMORALIZING.

Perhaps the Federal League's [illegible] to some of the stars of the [illegible] and National, has had a demoralizing effect on baseball in general.

There seems to be an idea [illegible] ping some of the best that they [illegible] have to play ball next [illegible] see the Federals will take care [illegible] see if they want to jump [illegible] This is a bad state of mind, for, [illegible] ideas of all the [illegible] Federals are handing around [illegible] can owe it to his employer to give [illegible] best efforts no matter [illegible] pay roll, and sooner or later there will be a day of reckoning for those [illegible] backsliders.

The man is playing most [illegible] ly players enjoy [illegible] bigger than the [illegible] resident of the [illegible] states [illegible] ues will pass sooner or later and [illegible] safe and sane [illegible] will be [illegible] erected under which the stars will [illegible] at the money and the mediocre athletes will get [illegible] medicore pay.

No business can be run [illegible] when a star's [illegible] paid for [illegible] work, and the Federals will [illegible] something of their high priced competitions or will cut them down. To the man who shirks his job in the American or National Leagues, believing that there is a sort of Utopia to be found in the Federals, isn't likely to profit in the long run.

MONEY TO GET THE MONEY.

I do not blame the ball players for wanting to get the money, however. A man's baseball life is short enough at best and an accident may rob him of his means of livelihood at any time. There are no pensions for aged and infirm tossers, and when you come to play major league ball you have to play it while you have your job, for somebody else has your job.

The Tatao A Wonderful New Dance BY MAE MURRAY

By MAE MURRAY.

THERE is a Russian wave of enthusiasm sweeping over the entire country. Just as we have accepted the Russian tunic in our wearing apparel, so are the Russian dances becoming the very latest innovations for the ballroom. And for hot weather dancing there is nothing like these charming foreign folk dances to stir the blood and yet not overheat it to any extent.

In our present day dancing we are steadily and surely following in the steps of the Futurists, and the Futurists in turn are leading us to a revival of the folk dance. All the very latest dances as taught in all the aesthetic dancing classes are taken from the peasant dance and are gradually being worked into ballroom shape, and the most popular of these is the tello dance taken from the Russian peasantry. It is called the "Tatao" and is one of the most beautiful folk dances ever invented.

The partners hold hands raised but do not touch each other while dancing. They stand facing each other and begin the dance by clashing the feet together, first the right and then the left, as shown in the picture. This is done four times, the dancers snapping their fingers constantly, and then they take four back steps, stepping back without foot and dragging the other after, exactly like the Spanish step which almost everyone knows.

They then rush toward each other in a running step, clap the hands together and twirl. The second picture shows the position for the twirl, which is a pirouette done very rapidly with one hand held high and the other held low a little toward the back. Don't spread the fingers in an affected way for this arm posture, let them spread naturally, don't think about the hands at all, and the position will be natural, without affectation.

* * * *

After the twirl comes the rocking movement, which every girl who has ever taken gymnasium work of any kind will be sure to remember. The step is accomplished simply by swaying one foot from the ground, shifting all the weight of the body to the other foot, and a quickly swaying back again. The sway of the body in toward the side, and the foot is thrown not toward the side, but the body is inclined toward that side. The shifting is done rapidly from one foot to another, and from this step the couple can go back to the first movement or more movements can be introduced as the dancers wish.

The beginning of the dance is illustrated by picture No. 1, on the left; the second picture shows the position for the twirl.

Comparative Comfort

"Perfectly scandalous. I call it!" snapped the commercial traveller, dashing his morning paper to the ground. "This hotel is supposed to be a first class one—they charge enough, anyhow—and here have I been here four days, and nothing but ham, eggs, eggs for breakfast day after day!"

"Well, but they're different eggs," mildly interposed a meek little man sitting diagonally, carving the top off his.

"A fly dear sir, of course they're different eggs!"

"Then thank your stars that you have to stay at a place I know and where I have to spend a good deal of time, too," said the mild one, now firing up a little. "When I am here I see the same old bit of meat and day after day as joint (hot), cold), Irish stew, rissoles, fried ons, and by Saturday it makes ok appearance as a curry!"

"Oh, gods!" exclaimed the other, in despair.

"Where on earth is that little man resumed his egg. called home!" he said quietly, with a smutty finger. There was only a little flickering light burning far back in those eyes to tell that they did not belong to a dead face.

The girl tottered across the room and staggered suddenly against the support of a chair. She clutched the chair for a moment and then huddled into it.

ON THE RACK.

"Stand up!" commanded Zoubatoff, without raising his eyes from the paper he was reading.

Dully, as if mind and muscle could not meet to carry out messages, Anna cowered lower.

"Stand up!" thundered the chief of the Okrana, lifting eyes of cold menace.

The girl staggered to her feet. "Take off your hat," was the next command.

Her white fingers tightened on the back of the supporting chair. She gave no sign of having heard.

"How can we know?" asked the Count, disposing of Rolfe with easy indifference that he would soon find the facts did not worry him.

"I understand that he is in love with the girl—and that is a great point of danger."

"Oh, I don't think he is in love with her. An American would give his life for a woman not because he loves her—but because she is a woman! Rolfe is typical of his country," said his friend Nikolai. But because Rolfe was typically American, his friend Nikolai failed entirely to take the measure of manhood.

"Ah, then, what would this same American do if he loved a woman and this woman was being stolen from him?" asked Zoubatoff with discernment.

"That is a point of danger," confessed the Count. And indeed it was!

"Well, there is no need of alarm, providing we find him ignorant of the real facts," conceded Zoubatoff. In spite of his habit of looking on the dark side of things.

"Anna Mirrel has been brought in, your Excellency," announced Paviac quietly.

"Very well, bring her in here. * * * I had better cross-examine her alone and find out whether she has communicated with this Mr. Julian Rolfe or not," added Zoubatoff.

Accordingly Count Rostov gracefully departed for one of the inner offices of the Okrana. He knew that Anna Mirrel was to be put through the third degree and that Zoubatoff could work effectively single handed. And there were no one present to think cross-currents of thought.

"Take her record," commanded the chief of Paviac, and as the prisoner entered he was grimly studying the paper on which was written a coldly unsympathetic tale of her life.

Anna stumbled over the threshold of the Okrana like a sleep walker. By now brain and heart were so numb that she could no longer hear the beating of the "tell-tale heart." She had committed murder and now she would pay—that was all her weary mind could hold in its tortured depths. Her face was very white and her great dark eyes were sunk in rings that looked as if they had been marked heavily across her face

CHAPTER I.

At the Mercy of the Mob

FRANCE and the Reign of Terror spreading its grim fingers over the entire country, far and wide, with Louis XVI. in his grave, the revolutionary associations were not satisfied, but were already scheming for the death of Marie Antoinette.

The whole country seethed and boiled with the hot blood of the revolutionists, the mob thirsted for the blood of the royal family and their representatives; no one was safe. France seemed to have gone mad with the desire for slaughter. Every one was suspected, for, with the whole country divided as it was, no one could tell a friend from an enemy.

Citizen Dixmer, who had apparently thrown in his lot with the revolutionists, was an ardent member of the club of Friends and Brothers. His devotion to the cause of the people had inspired the countryside with fresh hope, and incidentally with fresh attempts on the lives of the nobles. No one imagined how carefully Dixmer kept the mob with him, so that he might work gradually for the liberation of the queen he loved.

Paris was rife with dire and dreadful proclamations from the people. The mob demanded the death of Marie Antoinette, charging her with conspiring with the enemies of France. Decidedly, any plan for her freedom would be carried on at a great risk, but Dixmer — at heart a Royalist, whatever he might be forced to show on the surface—was willing to risk not only his own life but everything that made his life most dear.

Hurrying home one day from a meeting in the public square, where he had gathered much data, a token for his devotion to the cause, he personally superintended the carrying in of some jugs of wine which he had placed in his little workroom at the top of the house. Hardly had the two servants left the room when he carefully removed the top from one of them and began pouring the contents into a large tub. Suddenly a little bottle came out of the jar with the running liquor, and, hastily setting down the cask, Dixmer sat down and scrawled a written message out of the bottle, which he read with a great deal of satisfaction. The note was as follows:

"I have a plan to prevent the queen's death. Help me in it and your fortune is made. Send by your wife, my dear sister, Genevieve, a disguise which will enable me to enter Paris. I am waiting at the White Horse Inn, opposite the Barrier du Roule.

CHEVALIER DE MAISON ROUGE.

The rank of the man who signed his name to the message was enough to condemn Dixmer to instant death, but the Chevalier de Maison Rouge was a noted Royalist, who would stop at nothing to reach his ends, and had it been discovered that Dixmer was conspiring with him nothing in the world could save him.

"Send your wife," the note read, and Dixmer considered a long time before deciding to place Genevieve in a position where grave peril was imminent. But there was no one else who would recognize the chevalier and who could be trusted to carry the message at the same time. Decidedly Genevieve would have to be sacrificed, and a moment later Dixmer was in the presence of his wife.

Genevieve Dixmer was wildly, gloriously beautiful, nor she did not love her husband. She hardly looked up from the harp she was playing until his first words made her start back in affright. Dixmer had come right to the point, and what Genevieve would not risk for him she would risk for her brother, so there was little hesitation on her part. While Dixmer wrapped up a disguise Genevieve attired herself like a peasant girl.

"All you have to do is to act like one of the mob," said her husband as he let her out on the stone court. And the next minute the girl, for she was little more, was alone in Paris. Several times before she reached the inn she was accosted, but she smiled coyly and was allowed to pass on. At the inn she was forced to allow the innkeeper to kiss her, but the sight of a tall silent figure with his mantle held up against his face, sitting at one of the tables nearby, gave her courage to undergo the indignity in silence. A moment later she was allowed to slip into a seat at an adjoining table, and she had the satisfaction of knowing that her brother had recognized her.

"Then why goes to Siberia?"

"Yes; for life."

Nikolai Rostov sighed his relief. "That settles the whole matter."

And so two high dignitaries of Russia threatened to dispose of a woman's life. But there was another element in the matter, and of this Zoubatoff suddenly bethought himself.

"That doesn't settle it—quite. Suppose we find that this American journalist, Julian Rolfe, knows—what then?"

"HOW CAN HE KNOW?"

"How can he know?" asked the Count, disposing of Rolfe with easy indifference that he would soon find the facts did not worry him.

WHERE are the pretty "little girls" we used to see? Where are the girls who bloomed as radiantly as the Spring flowers of each awakening season on streets and porches of town and country? Where are the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked girls with low heeled boots, big hair horn hats and softly braided hair that hung as they walked eagerly off to the last days of school?

There used to be three ages at girlhood—childhood, girlhood and young ladyhood. But now the girls seem to omit the lovable childlike stage and to skip with startling effect from being dear little girls to being over-dressed and self-conscious young ladies.

Now the girl of sixteen wears pumps, whose high heels tilt her into a startling imitation of the debutante slouch, and her tight skirts allow only the briefest of dainty little strides. Her smart little tailor-made and her dashing silk frocks are worn on the same lines as the "creations" her mother and big sister wear. Her hair is ribbonless and bradless, but is strained up from her ears and gathered into the "tango twist" that is popular on cabaret dancers' necks. Her a chic little hat, with dash and go, but not atop of her head, but little lower. Today the girl of sixteen could never be pleased by a gift of simple gold beads, for she would be quite annoyed by the girl of ten years ago. She wears the latest thing in art nouveau jewelry, the enameled gold lockets and oval painted and powdered fashion that makes her look like

FORBES SHOWS RESULT OF LACK OF CONFIDENCE

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

American corporations issued $996,745,000 bonds, notes and stocks during the first half of this year, an increase of $48,208,000.

An abnormal proportion, however, has represented forced borrowing to take up maturing and other imperative obligations.

Also an alarming percentage has consisted of short-time issues—$350,000,000, or over 35 per cent. of the grand total. This makeshift form of financing raises disquieting questionings concerning the future, as notes return to plague their makers in a year or two.

The railroads have raised $755,666,000 during the six months, and industrial companies $228,000,000.

Never during the present generation has so high a price been paid by strong, powerful, widely known corporations for capital—too, too, in face of phenomenally low money rates in Wall Street.

The trouble is less a scarcity of capital than a scarcity of confidence. And unfortunately this condition still exists, although there appears to see a change when the results of the November Congressional elections are announced.

Were the difficulties purely monetary our ruling bankers would justify expectations of early and effective relief. As it is, the new system cannot prove a panacea.

In England the half year's security output reached $820,000,000, against $726,000,000 a year ago and $500,000,000 two years ago. Latterly, however, underwriters have been left with uncomfortable amounts.

At home the absorption also has been poor of late.

In June the offerings aggregated only $112,781,000, a decrease of $68,342,000 from June, 1913.

Railroads again failed to issue one share of stock. The only large issue was St. Paul's $30,000,000 4½ per cent. bonds. Total bond offerings were $66,457,000 and notes $35,665,000. The railroad monthly total was $89,241,000, down $47,677,000.

Industrial companies sold $12,440,000 bonds, $9,000,000 notes and $1,000,000 stocks, a total of $22,440,000, off $29,766,000 from June, 1913.

The monthly output of new securities this year has been:

	1914	Change from 1913.
January	$129,292,000	—$63,124,000
February	252,377,000	—150,015,000
March	109,918,000	—211,011,000
April	262,024,000	—96,947,000
May	120,252,000	—2,857,000
June	112,781,000	—68,342,000
Total	$996,745,000	—$48,208,000

The possibilities of New York having a motordrome similar in many respect to that of Indianapolis are greatly improved. The option on the Sheepshead Bay race track which expired yesterday has been extended for fifteen days. Those who are interested in the proposition have gone over the property in a most thorough manner and plans have been made to move the present grandstand and to increase the size that great speed can be made thereon.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular by afternoon, after showing early gains and developing a doubtful speculation during the first hour. Markets were never more professional than today. There is not much bona fide investment account, but on the other hand stockholders are holding firmly to their shares in the belief that values have touched bottom and that any general improvement must be a rise.

By afternoon in New York gains included Southern Pacific ½, Reading ¼, American Telephone ¼, Amalgamated ⅛, Union Pacific ⅛ and Utah Copper ⅛. Among losses were Canadian Pacific ¼, New Haven ¼ and Northern Pacific ⅝. Missouri Pacific, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, Smelting and Baltimore & Ohio were unchanged.

In Boston, Boston & Maine and New Haven were unchanged. Illinois Central was up fractionally. Tobacco 3s and Calumet & Arizona ¼, United Fruit was off 2¼ at 144. Butte & Superior was off a point, a little lower. Wolverine had advanced a point and Massachusetts Gas ½.

STOCKS OPENED HIGHER.

Prices were on a little higher level at the opening of markets in this country, but early trading was exceedingly dull, first hour transactions in New York totaling less than 75,000 shares. The same conditions which governed markets yesterday still prevailed. Few traders now believe that the Interstate Commerce Commission will allow the Eastern freight rate case this week. There seems to be more hope, however, of getting the case through in the roads. It is announced that Western roads will ask for a 10 per cent. increase in rates on all lines west of the Mississippi, and that the petition will be presented late this month. Early in the plea for a 5 per cent. rate increase by Eastern lines the roads asked that they be granted a receivership for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road, whose defaulted on bond interest payment, has been asked for in a Federal court.

In the face of adverse reports to earnings, railroads averaged higher for awhile this morning, but early gains were not long maintained and later in the forenoon prices showed little change from yesterday's closing level.

IRREGULAR IN LONDON.

Americans were irregular in London where the market lacked interest. There is more ease in the money market here and the outlook in that respect is reassuring. The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount remained unchanged at 5 per cent. and its proportion of reserve to liabilities to 40.12 per cent. compared with 42.14 for the corresponding 1913 week. Bar gold was unchanged at 77s 9d in sterling. The Bank of France reported a gain of about $16,000,000 in gold for the week.

It was called Hearst newspapers that in London there is fear that money will be higher in New York as soon as crops begin to move.

COPPER METAL FIRMER.

There has been an improvement in the copper metal market within forty-eight hours. Prices for electrolytic are higher in Europe. It is said that there has been buying in the London market. The improvement was indicated by the substantial rise in the lowest price recorded since the closing month of 1911.

STEEL UP AND DOWN.

Steel as the market leader reflected the uncertainty which appears in the new phase of the present speculation situation. It moved up and down within a narrow range. Its earnings were much discussed and it is thought by most observers of industrial conditions that it will make a poor statement for the second quarter. However, Iron Age says steel manufacturers expect the last half of 1914 to develop some buying of their products than occurred during the previous six months. June business showed a slight improvement. Now steel consumers are awaiting the rate case decision before placing orders. It is said that if in its report for June the Steel Corporation shows any increase in unfilled tonnage it will be small. On the whole it must be said that there has been an improvement in steel trade sentiment.

The crop outlook is even more favorable as midsummer approaches, and the latest Government report as to the condition of cotton on June 25 was a gratifying surprise.

BOSTON ELEVATED ADVANCES.

The feature of the Boston market was the advance of Boston Elevated and the decline of United Fruit. Elevated sold up to 95 during the morning. It is said that its June earnings increased $25,000, or 2.8 per cent. Its gain in gross for the fiscal year which ended with June was encouraging. The News Bureau says of the road: "It is probable that the fiscal year will make an increase in dollars and cents over 1913 of better than $300,000. There is no doubt that the year will show a fall in per cent. earned for the $22,579,000 capital stock, with a balance of substantial proportions to this good."

United Fruit continued to be sold on small holdings, who are alarmed over unfavorable rumors as to this corporation's recent earnings. During the morning it declined to 143¼. The local list averaged firm. Business was dull here.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Dun & Co. state that failures in the United States for the first six months of 1914 totalled 9,344 and that the indebtedness totalled $185,939,726.

Cotton condition on June 25 was 79.8 per cent., compared with 81.8 per cent. last year and 80.7 per cent. the previous ten-year average. On July 25 last conditions was 74.3 per cent. Average acreage of cultivation is 36,060,000, compared with 37,415,000 last year.

The London copper warrants market was firm this morning, and by noon spot was up 3s. 9d. and futures 1s. 3d.

MASSACHUSETTS MUST DO ITS DUTY BY SALEM

THE Sunday AMERICAN, last Sunday, emphasized the imperative DUTY of our great Commonwealth to aid Salem—to help the helpless men and women of the stricken city to get food, shelter and work, and in a larger way, if possible, to give aid in rebuilding the city.

So far, Massachusetts as a State has done NOTHING. Private citizens have given generously, as they always do. But the State has NEGLECTED its plain DUTY. WHY? Who is to blame?

Representative McCarthy on Monday took up the AMERICAN'S suggestion in the House and urged his fellow members to act promptly.

Governor Walsh has also made excellent suggestions to the Legislature.

Now, let there be ACTION. It is humiliating to have to call upon the citizens of other cities for help, while our proud and rich State stands idly by and does nothing.

It will be time enough to "pass the hat" around after Massachusetts has given freely. And it is the DUTY of the State to act generously, sanely and at once.

Colonel Roosevelt's Laudable Course Since His Presidential Days

Colonel Roosevelt's address to the Pennsylvania Progressive Conference at Pittsburgh should give pause to the well-meaning physicians who have urged upon him rest and perfect quiet.

Rest when the wicked Penrose and the virtuous but benighted Wilson invite alike the application of the Big Stick?

Quiet, when, as in the famed instance of Roderick Dhu,

"One blast upon his bugle-horn
Were worth a thousand men"?

If the political perplexities of a neighboring State compelled so strenuous an ontburst, what must be the struggle of the Colonel when he contemplates his own Empire State prostrate beneath the heels of Barnes and Murphy, with none but mollycoddles offering to rescue her?

It is incredible that the medical gag will hold, and perhaps it is as well for the Colonel that it should not. Suppressed oratory is as bad as suppressed measles. Both are perilous when they strike in.

Besides, the message that Mr. Roosevelt has to deliver, as forecasted by his utterances in Pittsburgh, is in many respects a very inspiring and a very helpful one. It is given to some men to be inspired leaders as long as they are not in office; to be preachers and prophets rather than executives. Moses ended a great work—though it took him forty years to do it—when he led his people to the Promised Land. It may have been as well for his people and better for his fame that he died without attempting to rule them after they had entered upon their own.

We are moved to these reflections by a comparison of the very excellent program which Colonel Roosevelt recently outlined, with his record while in the White House. Consider, for example, his discussion of the problem of industrial monopoly and its regulation.

He is quite right in denouncing the effort of the Democratic party today to cope with this problem as made futile by their fear of erecting a strong government. The Trade Commission proposed by the administration leaders is, as he points out, utterly futile and inadequate—a mere smelling committee, without power to correct abuses which it may detect. As opposed to this weak invention for trifling with the trust power Colonel Roosevelt offers us a commission with

1.—The power of investigation.
2.—The power to prohibit all trade practices within its jurisdiction.
3.—The power to end the exclusive control of a factor necessary to production by an order adapted to the circumstances of the particular case.

This outline of the duties and powers of such a commission is admirable. In contrast with the puny powers of the Wilson trust bill it shines like a bright light over a stormy sea. But somehow we wish Colonel Roosevelt had set up his beacon a little earlier.

In 1907 Colonel Roosevelt was President of the United States, and famous beyond any of his predecessors for the skill with which he procured such legislation as he desired from Congress. In that Congress sat William Randolph Hearst, who introduced three bills bearing upon the very subject which the Colonel now disposes of with oratory. These bills provided

A Federal Incorporation Act.
An Interstate Commerce Court.
An enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

These bills provided precisely the remedies which Colonel Roosevelt now sets forth as brilliant discoveries. They were sound measures in 1907, although President Roosevelt was indifferent to them, and they are still sound measures today, when Colonel Roosevelt champions them.

In 1907 he had power to materially aid—probably to compel—the enactment of these measures into law. Instead he regarded them coldly and contented himself with attacking monopoly by assisting the Steel Trust to gobble up the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company in defiance of law and seeing to it that no interference was put in the way of the New Haven when it wanted to benevolently assimilate competing steamship lines.

Whatever his text books, however, Colonel Roosevelt is to be complimented upon his progress and his assimilation of the common sense doctrine of monopoly and its control. He is wholly right when he says:

"Unlimited competition has proved one of the greatest curses of modern civilization. It was unlimited competition which created the great trusts, exactly as it created the sweatshops, and is chiefly responsible for child labor. THE NEW FREEDOM IS MERELY THE OLD, OLD FREEDOM WHICH PERMITS EACH MAN TO CUT HIS NEIGHBOR'S THROAT."

Combination is as natural in business as it is in human society. Only among primitive peoples is every man a law unto himself and an enemy to his neighbor. Combination was the first step toward civilization, and is a force which will persist while civilization continues. In so far as it may invade individual rights the remedy is not to seek destruction—which would be impossible—but to compel its regulation for the public good. It is the expression of greater experience, better knowledge and higher intelligence, the result of education, the effect of gradual appreciation of certain fundamental principles and the transmission of those principles into practical operation.

Intelligent consideration of the results of combination, good and bad, in the business world leads to the inevitable and unavoidable conclusion that it should be permitted, should be compelled to be public, and should be regulated in the interests of the public.

Toward this conclusion Colonel Roosevelt seems to be progressing, not, perhaps, with certain steps, but still tending to the unescapable goal. Perhaps he is strengthened somewhat by the zest he finds in attacking the wholly untenable position of the administration, which, as he truly says, "proposes a policy of further destruction even more unintelligent in conception, and certain to be more futile in performance than the existing policy which it amends."

"Well, boys, I don't know anything about that 'River of Doubt' that Theodore claims he's found, but we've got him beaten a mile with this 'River of Dough' that we've discovered! It never runs dry! The natives of this country are most interesting, too! Their language sounds almost like English. It's awfully funny to hear them talk. And the animals are very remarkable, especially the Sad-eyed Buzzeek and the Climbing Ump. I am reminded of those well-known lines of Chaucer:—

And robbe ye Common People of they're dough!'"

New York women are passing out sandwiches and pie to politicians in their campaign for the ballot.—News item.

IN England, when the suffragette makes up her mind the vote to get,
She takes an axe and madly whacks
A Lord or Secretary;
Or, with a can of kerosene, she sneaks up on the King and Queen,
Or seeks to blight with dynamite
The See of Canterbury.

THOUGH priceless paintings she has gashed, though royal heirlooms she has smashed,
Though all the Lords flee shrieking towards
Their homes when she appears;
The blood and thunder suffragette has not annexed the vote as yet,
And still must fight and scratch and bite
For many weary years.

THE women of the U. S. A. go after votes a different way;
They don't hurl stones or fracture bones
In battling for the ballot;
But fashion sandwiches and pie to catch the Legislator's eye.
They wisely start to gain his heart
By aiming at his palate.

AND when he's stupefied with cake (the kind his mother used to make)
And bread as light and snowy white,
As mother used to bake it,
The women will not seize his throat and throttle him to get the vote;
Ah! No, indeed! They'll only need
To waltz right up and take it!

Was Independence Promised?

(From "The Philippines Past and Present")

By DEAN C. WORCESTER

IT has long been the fashion in certain quarters to allege, or to insinuate, that American consuls and naval officers promised the insurgent leaders that the independence of the Philippines would be recognized by the United States. It has been claimed by some that the co-operation of the insurgents in the military operations against Manila was sought for and secured. Others say that they were at least de facto allies of the United States, and that they were in the end shamelessly betrayed and wantonly attacked.

These are very serious charges. I shall prove, chiefly by the insurgent records, that each of them is false.

It was my good fortune to be long and intimately associated with Admiral Dewey while serving on the first Philippine Commission. He always grew indignant when the subject of any promise relative to independence said to have been made by him was so much as mentioned, and gave to the commission in writing the following:

"The statement of Emilio Aguinaldo [illegible] so far as it relates to [illegible] reported conversations with myself or portions of mine is a tissue of falsehood. I never directly or indirectly promised the Filipinos independence. I never received or saluted the so-called Filipino flag. I never considered him as an ally, although I did make use of him and the natives to assist me in my operations against the Spaniards."

* * *

We may summarize the well established facts as follows:

Consul-General Pratt was, or professed to be, in hearty sympathy with the ambition of the Filipino leaders to obtain independence, and would personally have profited from such a result, but he restrained from compromising his government and made no promises in its behalf.

Admiral Dewey never even discussed with Aguinaldo the possibility of independence.

There is no reason to believe that any subordinate of the admiral ever discussed independence with any Filipino, much less made any promises concerning it.

Neither Consul Wildman nor Consul Williams promised it, and both were kept in ignorance of the fact that it was desired, up to the last possible moment.

It is not claimed that either General Anderson or General Merritt made any promises concerning it.

The conclusion that no such promise was ever made by any of these men is fully justified by well established facts.

Dress Reform? Fine! But Never by Resolutions!

The One and Only Way the Federation of Women's Clubs Can Modify Women's Garb Is by Just Doing It Themselves

By DOROTHY DIX

THE Federation of Women's Clubs, at its recent meeting in Chicago, passed a resolution denouncing the present fashions in women's clothes and the wickedness of Paris dressmakers who design 'em.

Now, talk is all very well, but action is better. Passing resolutions is a spectacular way of dealing with a subject, but it isn't effective. If instead of "be it resolved-ing" to banish the slit skirt, and the transparent waist, and the fig leaf bodice, the ladies in convention assembled had pledged themselves—and kept the pledge—to wear no more such giddy garments, they could have not only advocated a reform—they could have inaugurated it.

The Federation of Women's Clubs is one of the most powerful organizations in the world. It has a membership of more than a million women, and these women are the women who run things, and make popular opinion in every town and hamlet in the United States. They are the wives of the leading bankers, and merchants, and professional men. They are the rich widows and spinsters, for it is the middle-aged, well-to-do women who have the time and money to devote themselves to club work.

And these women are the women who buy good clothes. Slim young girls can wear cheap muslins and ready-made gowns, but when a woman gets along to the clubwoman age she needs all that the best tailor and dressmaker can do for her, and this makes her their best customer.

This being the case, she is in a position to dictate to fashion, not to be its slave, and if the million members of the Federation of Women's Clubs really disapprove of present styles they can change them in the twinkling of an eye. There would be no more split skirts, no more diaphanous waists, if a million rich and influential women refused to wear those garments, or to let their daughters wear them, for dressmakers, even French dressmakers, are nothing but merchants who supply their customers with what the customers want and are willing to pay for.

Women always speak of foolish fashions as if they were helpless victims in the matter, and that there was some supernatural power that forced a woman into wearing a skirt so narrow that it crippled her, or heels on her shoes so high that every step was a torture.

Never was there a greater absurdity. Women are free agents in the way they dress, and if they wear clothes that expose their forms just as much as if they had on tights, and if they court pneumonia by going about with nothing but a filmy lace over their chests in Winter, it is because they want to. There are bolts and bolts of good cloth waiting to be made into full skirts and high neck bodices, and plenty of dressmakers and tailors ready to construct any style of architecture of a dress for which a woman is willing to pay.

Therefore, so long as women deck themselves out in the modern style of dress, and deliberately choose fashions that were designed for the demimondaines of Paris, the world has a right to smile a trifle cynically at their resolutions condemning these wicked gauds. When the ladies of the Federation consign the two by four skirts to the rag bag, and buy them some plaited skirts, we shall believe a little more in their sincerity.

Also, let us trust that the Federation of Women's Clubs will not expend all of its zeal in condemning the designers of French fashions, but will use part of its enthusiasm in encouraging American fashions that are created with a knowledge of the temperament and needs of American women.

It is significant that the only two sane and sensible garments that women possess are of American origin. These are the short-skirted coat suits and the shirt waist, and against both of these Paris struggled and fought for years, but without avail.

This gives us reason to hope that America, if given a chance, may yet develop a sane and safe fashion for women, something that will be comfortable to wear, beautiful to form, graceful in lines, harmonious in color, and that will stay in style long enough for a woman to get some wear out of a garment.

American to Demonstrate Man's Dream of Flying

Clifford Webster to Sail Over Revere on Saturday for the Readers of This Paper to Prove Victory Over Air in "Fool-Proof" Craft

Have you ever stood upon an exceeding high mountain, blanketed and swathed in chill mist, till by and by the mist began to break and scatter? First perhaps would be revealed the horny spur of some adjacent peak; or through a thinning of the cloud floor beneath you, the green carpet of the fields appeared; or a glimpse of some magic-blue sheet of water, dimpling in the sun far below.

Have you ever stood so till by and by the whole world lay spread before you, preening herself in the sun like a bride in her wedding gown; the billowing green of the open fields and hills; the darker shadows of the forests; the little lakes like lovely gems in a maiden's hair; the far dimming of the horizon in a kindly haze? You who have seen this picture have not soon forgotten it.

But it is higher than any mountain top the airship bears you. And since flight brings such experiences, it is small wonder that since the beginning men have sought to fly. God was always conceived as a being who dwelt in the heights. There was never a Deity without wings, save in the lowest haunts of the savage. One of the oldest legends tells of a man's pitiful attempt at flight, when the sun melted the wax of his wings and whipped him to destruction.

The beginning of man's long-retarded victory is just at hand Simultaneously we see an aeroplane venturing the Atlantic flight, and another of which experts say: "It is fool-proof, cannot fall." The success of the first is a matter of good fortune; but the success of the second has been demonstrated.

Clifford Webster is the aviator who drives this strange, new, stable plane. He has promised to fly over Revere next Saturday, and the AMERICAN invites you all to come, to see this marvel.

If you—like all mankind—have dreamed of the wonder of flight, come to Revere and see how near is the ultimate fulfilment of your dream.
